Sam Hayes Jr. To Become New State Agriculture Secretary

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Tom Ridge on Monday officially announced his nomination of Samuel E. Hayes Jr., 56, of Warrior's Mark, to serve as state agriculture secretary.

According to a news release from Ridge's press office, Hayes is to start as acting secretary on June 1.

If confirmed by the Senate, as is expected, Hayes would then serve as agriculture secretary for the less than two years remaining in Gov. Tom Ridge's term of office.

The announcement of Hayes as a nominee has been met with support and praise from representatives of agricultural organizations, legislators and policy leaders.

It has not, however, been met with much surprise, especially when considered in comparison to the event that lead to the need to find a new agriculture secretary.

Hayes is a former state representative who served for 22 years, and whose service included holding several key Republican leadership positions.

He has a strong resume and is considered a vigorous advocate of

A red barn, and farmers working the field and garden help create this rustic scene west of Manheim in Lancaster County Wednesday afternoon. Jay Hershey, beef farmer along Colebrook Road west of Manheim in Lancaster County, works the corn ground while the Evan Cargill family plant their garden. According to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service, corn planting continued ahead of the five-year average with some of the early corn starting to emerge. But gardners planting vegetables are behind schedule because of cool soil temperatures. The cool weather kept the growth of pastures and small grains slow too. EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Many young people, said a retiring high school performing arts director, think they are turkeys.

Sometimes he sees them walking down the hall in school, their arms listlessly at their sides, defeated. With heads down, they arrive in his English class, crestfallen, hope torn away from them.

When he asks the students what they would like to learn and experience today, they reply apathetically, "We'd like to sleep."

Carl Shaffer Thrives On Diversification, Ag Awareness

Carl Shaffer farms 1,000 acres near Mifflinville in Columbia County. A farm leader, Shaffer is vice president of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and president of the Ag Awareness Foundation.

MIFFLINVILLE (Columbia Co.) — The crackle of static from the remote radio unit on the dash of the suburban farm vehicle interrupts conversation and draws an immediate reach of the hand from the driver to pick it up. Now a major farming operation decision must be made.

It's mid-morning and the wind has increased. One of the workers located six miles down the valley on this 1,000 acre operation located near Mifflinville in Columbia County, is calling in to ask if he should continue to spray fields. Material drift may become a problem.

Reluctantly the farm owner calls off the spraying operation and puts his man to work repairing a broken piece on the chisel plow. Welcome to the world of Carl Shaffer, age 47, and vice president of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau.

When Shaffer's family purchased the local farms back in the '40s, they had a diverse operation that included cows, hogs, and chickens like most farms of that era. Today diversity is still the rule, but all the animals and poultry are gone. Everything revolves around field crops that includes 300 acres of snap beans.

"I still believe diversification of some sort is necessary in the farming operation," Shaffer said. " Not off-farm work, but enterprises that lend themselves to what you are doing on the farm. Even diversification of crops is good because if you have some dry periods during the summer, hopefully the rains you do get will be timely for at least some of crops."

Along with the snap beans, Shaffer farms corn and wheat, and oats for a cover crop in winter. His other farm enterprises include some custom bean harvesting, rental of wheat storage bins to a local flour mill, trucking, and removing the liquid waste water used to wash food processing equipment at a nearby pet food company. The liquid is a good injected fertilizer that is high in organic matter and nitrogen. But Shaffer is also paid to haul it away

Delmarva Broiler

MAY 14, 1997

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was light to fair and generally disappointing. Offerings were adequate to ample and 4.0 to 4.5 pound sizes were difficult to clear. Live supplies were at least moderate; weights were mixed in a full range, but more often heavier than desired. Processing schedules were moderate to heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were 1 cent lower at 54 to 68 cents. Trade sentiment was barely steady to weak. In the parts complex, all items were fully sufficient for current inquiry and excess supplies were generally difficult to clear.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
MAY 14, 1997

Grain and soybean bids finished lower, today, due to better than expected winter wheat crop and good progress made in spring planting. Wheat 2 to 7 cents lower. Corn steady to 2 cents lower. Sorghum 2 cents lower. Soybeans 7 to 11 cents lower. Less damage than expected for hard red winter wheat has been reported. However, harvest will be the final prognosis. Spring wheat planting is going well at this time and some rain is forecast next week in the dry areas. Corn bids were pressured by active planting, profit taking on the board, and lack of export sales this week. Traders believe we might have a large crop this year with all the planting being reported. Soybean planting has begun and is also going well. Favorable weather in the Midwest this week has been a blessing to farmers. Export demand has been nil for beans this week, also adding weakness to bids. Lower meal demand was a declining factor in beans bids. The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

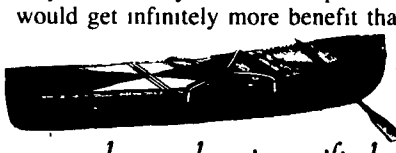
MAY 19-25, 1997

FULL FLOWER MOON, MAY 22.

ROW, ROW, ROW YOUR BOAT

National Maritime Day on May 22 signals a time to increase your nautical knowledge and celebrate maritime history. Do you know your port from your starboard? A jibe from a jib? How many statute miles in a nautical mile? (1.151) In case you're tempted to rush out and rent an outboard, however, take it from Theodore Roosevelt, who said, "I cannot help thinking that the people with motorboats miss a great deal. If they would only use oars or paddle themselves, they would get infinitely more benefit than by having their work done for them by gasoline."



Rich are the sea-gods — who gives gifts but they?

– Ralph Waldo Emerson

TIP OF THE WEEK

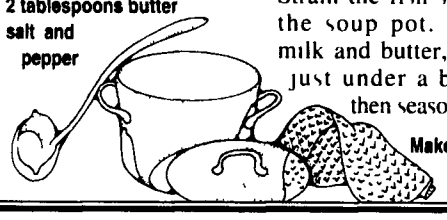
☞ Old asphalt roofing can be recycled for use as roadbed material.

FISH CHOWDER

- 4 pounds cod or haddock, with trimmings
- 1 stalk celery
- 1 bay leaf
- 1/4 teaspoon thyme
- pinch of mace
- 2 onions
- 1/4 pound salt pork, diced fine
- 3 cups peeled, cubed potatoes
- 4 cups milk
- 2 tablespoons butter
- salt and pepper

Bring to a boil and simmer 3 cups water with the fish bones and trimmings, the seasonings, and a slice of onion. Meanwhile, fry the salt pork in a soup pot with the rest of the onions, chopped. Add the potatoes and fish, cubed, and cook about 10 minutes. Strain the fish stock into the soup pot. Add the milk and butter, bring to just under a boil, and then season to taste.

Makes 2 quarts.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

A round-top cloud with flattened base [cumulus], carries rainfall in its face.

Warm and nice, but the lake's still like ice.

A rainy wedding day makes the skies of marriage gray.

If you want to make it rain, cut or burn a fern.

OPINION

Farmers Need To Tell Their Story

While ag security areas are made to help insure that a farmer can perform the normal farming practices in his operation, all problems with neighbors are not eliminated. You still need to work with your non-farm neighbors in a neighborly way.

Carl Shaffer, vice president of Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and president of the Ag Awareness Foundation, has some definite ideas along this line. Even though he farms in ag security areas in Columbia County, he still keeps communication open with neighbors by informing them if the cultivating machinery and tractors are going to be raising the dust. And he spreads the waste water from a pet food company on fields not located close to local homes where the odor may be a nuisance.

If the neighbors want corn stalks to decorate the house in the fall, they may take them. And they may walk the fields in search of arrow heads before the crop is planted. Shaffer raises 300 acres of green beans, so the neighbors get to pick some of them too. It's cheap public relations.

The Foundation helps too. They are placing a set of slides about agriculture in each county agent's office for use by farmers who get the opportunity to speak at a civic meeting. And with the Ag In The Classroom program now reaching 100 teachers each year, information is getting to the right source for grades K through 6 to become acquainted with farming in a positive way.

Farmers don't often think of themselves as public relations persons. But think about it, farmers are the most creditable source of information about their occupation. They need to tell their story wherever they have the opportunity.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Sign Up For Clean And Green

If you did not sign up for Clean and Green last year and you saw a big increase in your spring taxes, you may want to consider signing up for Clean and Green.

The deadline for signing up for the 1998 tax year is June 1, 1997.

Clean and Green is a preferential tax program for farmers that allow the county to determine real estate values on farms based on income potential instead of market value. For most farms in Lancaster County, this means reducing the value of your land by at least $4,000 per acre. This could mean a reduction of taxes by at least $68 per acre.

Once you are enrolled in Clean and Green, you do not have to enroll again. If the use of the land changes from farming, the person making the change is liable for rollback taxes up to seven years plus interest.

For more information on Clean and Green and an application form, contact the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension Office at (717) 394-6851.

To Control Burcucumber

According to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent, burcucumber has become a problem weed for many corn and soybean farmers in south central Pennsylvania.

Burcucumber is a summer annual weed which is difficult to control because of its ability to germinate over the entire growing season and from considerably deep in the soil. It has an aggressive growth pattern which allows one plant to grow vines which cover many square yards.

This weed may be very devastating to yields and makes harvesting almost impossible for both corn and soybeans.

W. Curran and D. Messersmith, Penn State Agronomy Department, completed a two-year study looking at the effect tillage and herbicide application had on the control of burcucumber. They concluded that tillage can affect burcucumber control.

In two of the three locations, no-till controlled more of the burcucumber than moldboard plowing and chisel plowing. Regardless of the tillage system, post applications of herbicides were more effective than preemergence applications.

If you have burcucumber problems, consider using a no-till planting system followed by late postemergent applications of herbicide such as Beacon, Peak, or Exceed.

Remember to always read and follow label instructions when using pesticides.

To Spot Poisonous Plants

Chester Hughes, Lancaster County extension livestock agent, reminds us that Pennsylvania has about 100 toxic plants to animals.

Some of these are responsible for death of numerous domestic livestock every year. Factors contributing to plant poisoning are starvation, accidental eating, and browsing habits of animals.

With houses springing up closer to farms, many farm neighbors are unfamiliar with the plants that are toxic.

Following are some common plants that are poisonous to livestock and should not be tossed over the fence to grazing animals: yew, holly, bracken fern, rhubarb, English ivy, wild cherry, oak (acorns and young shoots), and mountain laurel.

'EASY ON THE HALLELUJAHS'

Background Scripture:
Revelation 19 through 20
Devotional Reading:
Revelation 19:1-10

Some time ago I saw a piece in the newspaper about two men who got into a fight and were arrested by the local police for disturbing the peace. What was unusual and shocking about this incident is that the men began by arguing over the Book of Revelation! One of them was a premillenarianist and the other a postmillenarianist. It was their violent disagreement over the so-called "thousand-year reign of Christ" that brought them to blows.

While I don't claim to know for a certainty what reaction John expected from the readers of his Revelation, I do not think that Christian division was his aim. Unfortunately, people have used the book of Revelation to divide the Body of Christ and the controversy continues into our own time.

To me, taking John's visions as literal descriptions of the end of time is a tragic mistake. For one thing, the visions are too confused and fragmentary to be literal descriptions. Making literal sense of them is like trying to nail jello to the wall!

'FOREST' vs. 'TREES'

Secondly, it is apparent to me that, in interpreting the Book of Revelation, we are always in danger of missing the forest for the trees. The details (trees) of John's visions lead us into bickering and disunity; the overall meaning (the forest) of Revelation is a message of hope in a time of tribulation, the assurance that God in Christ will prevail and we will share in the victory. To me, that is enough; I leave the details, not to the theological warriors, but to God. And I take seriously Christ's admonition: "It is not for you to know times or seasons which the Father has fixed by his own authority" (Acts 1:7).

That means I can read Revelation 19 and 20 without a millenial timetable. Sufficient for me are the numerous images and symbols of the final victory of Christ. Whether it happens before or after a thousand year period is not important to me; but that God promises it will happen is.

I really don't care to be in on the details which I am content to leave in God's hands.

But I do need the reassurance that Revelation provides. As a youth, I naively thought that I would see substantial signs of the advancement of the kingdom of God in my lifetime. Now, 50 years later, I cannot tell whether the reign of God is closer by an inch or a yard. But at least I know it will not happen during my lifetime. So, it is particularly important for my faith to be able to trust that God's purpose will be fulfilled in his own time.

DETAILS, DETAILS

I don't know the details of what the kingdom of God will be, but I am assured by Revelation that there will finally be the justice of God that so eludes us in this life. I am assured that the world will some day be responsive to the love of Christ. And all those people who have lived and died as victims of tyranny will at last be justified. The poor will no longer be poor and the rich will no longer be rich — at least not in material "things." The broken will be healed and the empty will be filled.

I cannot in my wildest imagination conceive of what God's kingdom will be like and I would not be satisfied with anything that I could conceive or author. Nor would I be willing to leave it to any denominational — or even ecumenical — board.

Some years ago I saw a cartoon in the New Yorker. A man and woman were standing and singing in a church pew. The man's visage was enthusiastic, but his wife admonished him, "Take it easy on the Hallelujahs, Harry!"

The Book of Revelation's momentary glimpse of the glory that is yet to come gives us reason enough not to take it easy on the "Hallelujahs!"

Vote To Form Organization

ATLANTA, Ga. — Contract heifer growers meeting in Atlanta earlier this month voted to form a nonprofit dairy heifer growers' organization that is to serve the new segment of the dairy market with educational programs and establish guidelines for ethical business standards.

There were 150 heifer growers and 150 dairy industry representatives who attended the first national meeting held specifically for growers of the new heifer-contracting market.

According to a recent study, approximately 20 percent of dairy heifers are raised in the contract setting. The contract heifer arrangement allows dairy producers to focus on milk production and dairy-cow health while contract heifer growers manage the achievement of earlier breeding weight and the appropriate genetic lines.

The conference was arranged by a group of industry representatives that included producers, university faculty and corporate sponsors. The two-day program included information specific to the dairy contract market such as financial benchmarks, marketing services, contract guidelines, biosecurity and vaccination fundamentals.

According to Dr. Roger Cady, conference committee chairman, the registration materials generated a great deal of interest.

The goal of the organization committee is to have a formal nonprofit in place by Jan. 1, 1998. The date for the second conference is to be announced this summer.

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Teresa Broadwater, a Pa. DHIA technician in Westmoreland, Greene and Fayette counties, said she enjoys providing service for her clientele.

When asked what she likes most about her role as technician, Teresa is quick to point out the consideration and helpfulness of the dairymen in obtaining the information needed in completing a successful test. Other services provided by Teresa include tagging calves, filling out calf books and providing dairymen with same-day test reports.

Past farm experience includes both growing up on a farm and participating in several 4-H clubs which included the capon, beef, sheep, swine, garden and meat judging helped give her the ambition and experience needed to proceed into the agriculture field. Currently her circuit consists of 20 herds, but continues to grow.

Pa. DHIA continues to provide service to members in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Maryland, West Virginia and Missouri. Providing high quality service at a competitive price continues to be top priority at Pa. DHIA. Please feel free to contact Pa. DHIA at 1-800-344-8378 if we can assist with your dairy operation.

As part of Carl Shaffer's large farming operation, two corn planters are at work along the beautiful mountians of Columbia County.

so he doesn't look at the value of the material for fertilizer.

The state environmental protection department has approved the injection of the waste water in the ground, and Shaffer has a nutrient management plan for each of his farms. A computer program keeps track of all inputs and yields from each field.

While the development pressures are not as extensive as in some other counties, Shaffer still believes one of the economic factors facing farmers is the loss of ground available to rent. With the large capital investment in equipment, you need a large number of acres to cover. Even in this rural area, Staffer has lost 300 to 400 acres of rented ground to development over the last five years.

The farms are in an ag security area, but Shaffer believes you still need to educate the public about normal farming practices and keep communication open with your neighbors. If the neighbors ask for some corn stalks to decorate the house in the fall, they may take them. And neighbors may walk the fields in search of Indian arrowheads until the crop is planted. Even some beans are picked by the neighbors with the blessing of the farm owner. The few pounds of beans that are lost provide very inexpensive public relations.

But Shaffer is doing more to help farm and city relations. As president of the Ag Awareness Foundation, he has helped to get a set of slides about farming into every extension office across the state. If a farmer gets a request to speak to a civic group, the slide set along with script can be used. In addition, the ag in the classroom program has advanced to the point where 100 teachers are given the opportunity to learn about agriculture each year. A new video has been produced in three segments to fit classroom periods and provide an excellent source of instruction in grades K to six.

Shaffer also serves on the ag advisory board to DEP and the vegetable marketing board.

As for his work with Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, Shaffer believes the organization has two major roles to fill in legislative affairs. The need to support legislation good for farmers is evident. What is not so evident is working to stop legislation that would be bad for farmers.

Issues such as nutrient management, well head protection, backhauling, and citizen monitoring of water quality in state streams are all in need of a farmer voice in Harrisburg.

The back-hauling law requires that any farm or agribusiness truck that has hauled anything other than food or feed can never, during the lifetime of the truck, be used for food or feed. There is no provision for sanitation of trucks. In practical terms, you can not legally haul fertilizer and later haul grain or sweet corn to market.

In the citizen's water monitoring issue, any group of people could become registered to moniter water in Pennsylvania. They can have access to private property along the stream banks. The potential to abuse power and gather unscientific data is obvious. Shaffer sees farm groups like Farm Bureau working to stop bad legislation and helping to forge good legislation for farmers.

Shaffer believes for all farmers, management becomes the key to success. "I still believe diversification is necessary. Our profit margins are so small and our capital investment so large, we can't afford several years of drought," Shaffer said. "You need to cover yourself in some way. In my operation 30 percent of cash flow comes

Carl Shaffer belives diversification is necessary so that if one enterprise fails during the year, maybe one of the other crops or businesses will pick you up.

Dairy Farmers Said To Agree On Federal Milk Marketing Reforms

CAMP HILL (Dauphin Co.) — In what appears to be a good sign for the future of Pennsylvania's dairy industry, Farm Bureau dairy producers from across the country recently reached a favorable consensus on how impending reform of the federal milk marketing system should take place.

The 1996 farm bill directed the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to reform the federal system and consolidate the number of milk marketing orders from 32 regional milk marketing orders into 10 to 14 orders by 1999. The federal order system was established nearly 60 years ago to stabilize market conditions and provide consumers with adequate milk supplies while assuring dairy farmers of a minium price for their milk, but in recent years it has become "a cause of regional differences," according to American Farm Bureau dairy specialist Ken Olson.

The American Farm Bureau Federation took the challenge of attempting to unify dairy producer interests on federal milk order reform and hosted a meeting last month in Chicago. More than 50 state Farm Bureau leaders attended including Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) representatives Harold Curtis of Warren County, a member of the PFB Board of Directors and chairman of PFB's Dairy Advisory Committee, Joel Rotz, PFB's Dairy Specialists, and Harold Shaulis of Somerset County, a member of the American Farm Bureau Order Reform Working Group.

The Working Group is charged with reviewing USDA's proposal for market order reform and advising the American Farm Bureau Board of Directors. "There has been a lot of cooperation between all regions of the country," ssaid Shaulis of the Working Group's progress to date. "Everybody is willing to give and take to reach agreement on the issues. That's exactly what we need to be doing at this point in the industry."

The group studied six pricing options, basic formula price plans, milk classifications, and uniform provisions sponsored by USDA. It also heard proposals by dairy coalitions from various regions. USDA is seeking changes that will provide appropriate market signals to producers nationwide, while helping to minimize some of the price volatility the dairy industry has experienced. According to James Hahn, acting milk market administrator for the Chicago region, USDA is looking for consensus among dairy producers, processors and consumers. Equity was the operative word he used in speaking to the Working Group. To achieve equity, compromise is needed, he said.

Dairymen attending Farm Bureau's conference last month in Chicago reached agreement on several milk order issues in line with PFB's goals. On the suggested consolidation of federal orders in the northeastern U.S. the group agreed that the new order should include all areas currently in federal orders 1, 2 and 4, plus all unregulated areas of the northeastern states beginning at the Pennsylvania-Ohio border, including Maryland and extending to the border of Maine.

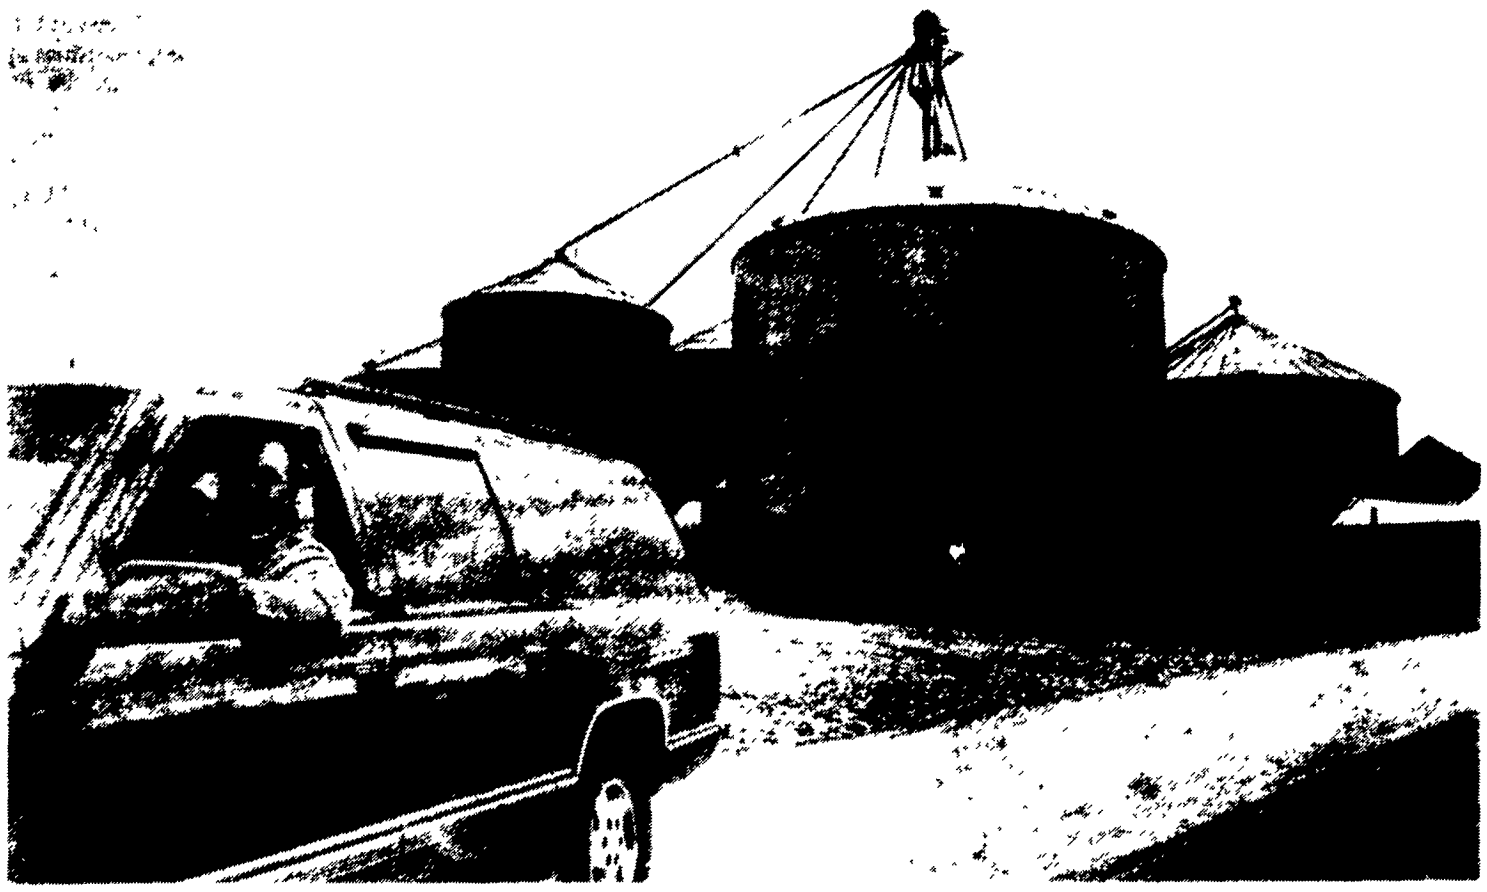
from the other enterprises, and 70 percent from crops. If we have a drought we'll get hurt, but the other enterprises will help."

In addition, Shaffer believes you must make an objective self appraisal of net worth. Be conservative, and realistic. Know at what point you would sell out if your situation deteriorated. You must be as objective in not planting a crop in an unprofitable field as you are in culling a cow. To do this you need to keep accurate records of inputs and harvest weights.

And you need to keep looking for other enterprises that will fit into your operation. "We get so concentrated on our everyday work we often miss good opportunities," Shaffer said. "If you can find something that really meshes with your farming operation the diversification will help make your farming more secure.

"We live in a changing world with a global market. If we don't continue to develop practical technology that farmers can use, we will be left behind. If we can find a better way to farm without harming the environment, thats wonderful."



Carl Shaffer has 200,000 bushel capacity in grain bins some of which is rented out to store wheat for a local flour mill.

Alter Named Associate Vice President, Director Of Cooperative Extension

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dr. Theodore R. Alter, interim dean in the College of Agricultural Sciences and professor of agricultural economics at Penn State, has been named to the position of associate vice president for outreach, director of cooperative extension, and associate dean in the College of Agricultural Sciences. Alter will take the position effective July 1, 1997.

Alter earned a B.A. in economics with distinction from the University of Rochester. He received both his M.S. and Ph.D. in resource economics and policy from Michigan State University, where he also was a National Defense Education Act fellow. Alter joined the Penn State faculty as an assistant professor of agricultural economics in 1976. From 1989 to 1994, he served as regional director of the Southeast Region for the nine-county region. He was appointed head of the department of agricultural economics and rural sociology in March 1994 and interim dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences in July 1996. Alter received the American Agricultural Economics Association distinguished extension program award in 1985.

"The university is extremely pleased that Dr. Alter has accepted this important position," says Penn State President Graham Spanier. "Dr Alter has a distinguished record at Penn State and a national reputation for excellence in his field. His breadth of knowledge and experience provides exactly the background needed to lead cooperative extension in its mission to provide educational programs in the areas of agricultural and natural resources; children, youth and families; and community and economic development. In addition, his leadership skills will be a great asset as the university expands the scope and impact of our outreach effort and our service to Pennsylvanians."

The position was created as part of an overall effort to enhance cooperative extension and engage the entire university in a broadened outreach effort. Cooperative extension, with offices in each of Pennsylvania's 67 countries, transfers research-based information to Pennsylvania's citizens through non-formal educational programs designed to meet locally identified needs. Alter will have responsibility for coopertaive extension's program planning; budget, facilities, and human resource management; as well as government, industry and

Dairy Farmers Said

On the issue of price differentials for Class I (fluid) milk, the group determined Option 1A to be the most acceptable. This option would increase basic milk prices through differentials according to their ranking in nine pricing zones. Orders with low fluid milk sales (Class I utilization) such as the Midwest could receive a differential in the lower price range and high fluid milk sales orders, such as Florida, would receive the highest price. This option would provide differential levels closest to those presently experienced in the Northeast. For the proposed, consolidated Northeast order, the differential would range from $2 to $2.35 per hundredweight of milk.

As for identical provisions to be applied to all orders, the Farm Bureau group recommends measures to restrict opportunistic pooling and depooling in orders which disrupts milk marketing.

On the issue of how the basic formula price for milk should be determined in the reformed orders, the Farm Bureau group felt that none of the four options being considered by USDA gives producers an opportunity to capture a larger share of the consumer dollar. The group recommends changing the Class III (cheese) mover to a product price formula with a competitive price mover. "This should give producers an opportunity to get a bigger piece of the pie," explained Rotz.

The American Farm Bureau Order Reform Working Group continues to support a decoupling of Class I prices from Class III cheese prices and the use of a [illegible]ing average as a price mover. This would alleviate some of the recent price volatility by averaging price changes over a longer period of time.

The group's recommendations will be considered by the American Farm Bureau Board of Directors at their next meeting in June. In the meantime, the Working Group, in its quest to unify the dairy industry on federal order reform, plans to meet with leaders from dairy cooperatives later this month.

constituent relations. He will report to both the dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences and to the vice president for outreach and cooperative extension.

"I strongly believe Ted Alter is the ideal candidate for this position. In his capacity as interim dean in the College of Agricultural Sciences, Ted and I have worked very closely together over much of the past year to develop a strategy that will both strengthen cooperative extension and make the resources of the entire university available to help Pennsylvania's citizens. I am very pleased that he will continue the job that he has begun," says Dr. James Ryan, vice president for outreach and cooperative extension.

Dr. Robert Steele, incoming dean for the College of Agricultural Sciences, says that the feedback received about Alter during the interview process was overwhelmingly positive. "Ted has developed a very favorable reputation and is held in very high regard, inside the College and out," Steele says.

FLY & ODOR CONTROL

BIG PERFORMANCE...SMALL PRICE

SIMPLE PROCEDURE: the aerator works directly into the bed of material, forming its own windrow. Windrows can be formed from piles of nearly any size. Alleyways are not required when using the Brown aerator, so there is a great reduction in space requirements. The aerator's reverse rotation works the material from the bottom up and to the side, assuring complete mixing and agitation. LOW MAINTENANCE: the aerator is a simple design, the principle as a material mover has been proven with over 30 years experience in practical application. The aerator is hydraulically driven and equipped with patented wearplates or paddles, both of which are easily replaced.

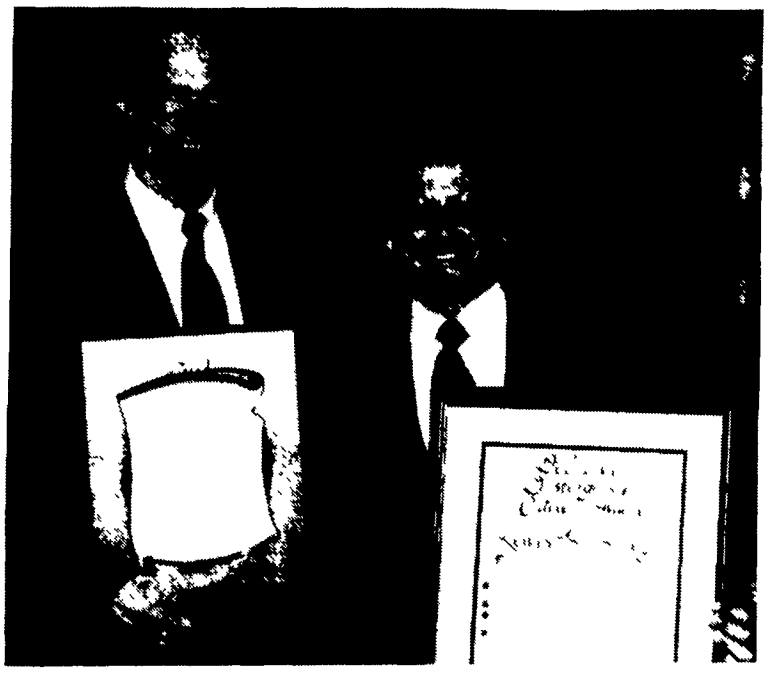
Delmarva Poultry Fund Drive Achieves Success

GEORGETOWN, DE — Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI), the nonprofit trade association working for the continued progress of Delmarva's poultry industry, received cash and pledges of $471,820 during its 1997 Fund Drive. That news was announced by Fund Drive Chairman Clark W. White at the April 22 Delmarva Poultry Booster Banquet in Salisbury, Maryland. The Fund Drive is DPI's means of raising money to support its many services and programs. DPI's membership consists of nearly 4,000 individuals and companies, including poultry growers, allied industry suppliers of products and services, Delmarva's six poultry companies, poultry company employees, and hundreds of non-poultry businesses on Delmarva which understand the economic importance of the industry to this area.



Delaware Governor Thomas R. Carper, left, and Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley were honored by Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI) at the April 22, 1997 Delmarva Poultry Booster Banquet in Salisbury, Maryland. Governor Carper was presented the DPI Medal of Achievement for his service to the poultry industry during his years as an elected official. Secretary Riley received the DPI Distinguished Citizen Award. His contributions to the poultry industry and community were cited by the award selection committee.

The Booster Banquet was also the occasion at which DPI presented awards to Delmarva's outstanding poultry growers and to individuals who have made significant contributions to the poultry industry.

Delmarva's Distinguished Citizen Award, given in recognition of a person's work on behalf of DPI, the poultry industry, and the community, was presented to Lewis R. Riley, secretary of the Maryland Department of Agriculture. A native of Wicomico County, Maryland, Secretary Riley has had a successful business career, including being a poultry grower. He has been active in DPI, the FFA, the Jerusalem United Methodist Church, the Farm Bureau, and the Parsonsburg Fire Company. Mr. Riley served as a member of the Wicomico County Council, the Maryland House of Delegates, the Maryland Senate, and presently as Maryland Secretary of Agriculture. During his career, he has been a powerful and respected voice for agriculture and the poultry industry.

The DPI Medal of Achievement, awarded annually to a public servant of an agency or an organization for outstanding achievement and service on behalf of the poultry industry, was presented to Delaware Governor Thomas R. Carper. Since his first election to political office in Delaware in 1976, he has shown an interest in the poultry industry. As Delaware's congressman, he consulted with and worked on behalf of the industry. As governor in the last four years, his support for agriculture and the poultry industry intensified. With his leadership, the Delaware Department of Agriculture became a strong voice for the state's farmers and agricultural industry. Agriculture has been included in the state's economic development efforts. During the July 1995 weekend when record heat caused high mortality, Governor Carper was on the telephone with DPI to offer state assistance. He has been a supporter of the newly opened Charles C. Allen, Jr. Biotechnology Laboratory at the University of Delaware, a facility which will benefit the poultry industry.

Other banquet honorees included 19 poultry growers selected by their companies as outstanding producers for 1997. They received their awards from DPI President Kay Richardson and Grower Committee Chairman Dale Boyce. Receiving the honors

Remember when being efficient was all it took to be a successful farmer? With some help from mother nature, being efficient is still the key to successful farming. And that, by itself, is a tough job.

Today's farmer has to know financing and marketing as well as production. And today, as in the past, The Ephrata National Bank is here to help.

We've been financing local farming since 1881 and plan to for years to come.

SPRING PASTURES AND SUPPLEMENTAL FEEDING

LARRY MULLER
Penn State University

Spring pasture growth is slow in many parts of the state because of cool weather and a shortage of rainfall. This has made the transition from confinement to pasture, and the supplementation of the pasture, even more challenging.

When we do get sunshine and moisture, pasture growth may "explode" and then we have the challenge of utilizing and harvesting the excess pasture growth and maintaining the quality of the pasture being grazed.

Pasture Quality

It is well known that spring pasture is high in nutritional quality if managed properly and maintained in vegetative state with an average pasture height of about 6 to 8 inches at grazing time. The total protein is higher, the fiber (ADF and NDF) lower, and the estimated energy higher than most stored forages.

However, there are nutritional imbalances or limitations to spring pasture. The forage is wet, perhaps 85 percent moisture, the protein is highly degradable during rumen fermentation and is often not efficiently utilized, and the low fiber with the high qualiity pasture may be deficient in "effective fiber."

Our challenge is to develop supplementation programs that complement the "good and bad" attributes of high quality pasture, and that lead to the most profitable milk production and optimum animal health and reproductive performance.

Do We Need To Feed Supplemental Nutrients?

The answer is a clear yes. We read of grazing countries such as New Zealand and Ireland where little or no grain is fed. The situations in these countries is different from Pennsylvania. In New Zealand, grain prices are higher and milk prices are lower than prices in Pennsylvania.

In Ireland, milk, prices and grain prices are higher than in Pennsylvania, so some feeding of supplemental nutrients is done. From my visit to Ireland, some herds with a lot of U.S. genetics are feeding up to 2,500 to 3,000 pounds of grain supplement per cow, or about 8-10 pounds per cow per day average for the entire lactation.

Based on research studies and farmer experiences, the intake of high quality pasture as the only feed can provide adequate nutrients for 40 to 45 pounds of milk. Research at Penn State found that high genetic cows fed only pasture produced about 60 pounds of milk. However, cows lost extensive body condition. Reproductive efficiency would likely decline if cows lose too much condition. Therefore, it is profitable to feed supplemental nutrients.

Energy

It is clear that energy is the most limiting nutrient when pasture is the major forage. Extensive research and producer experiences indicate that supplemental energy from grain is profitable and beneficial. Cows on pasture may require 3 to 4 pounds of grain per day just to meet the extra energy used for walking to the pastures and for grazing activities. The nonfiber carbohydrates, primarily starch, improves the rumen utilization of the high protein pasture and reduces the "energy cost" associated with the excretion of the excess protein in the urine.

Research shows that we can expect about 1 pound of milk for each 1 pound of grain fed with high-producing cows. This is usually a profitable response with milk and feed prices. Plus, the added energy gives the long term benefit of improved body condition. Based on research and producer experiences, the following grain feeding guidelines have been developed.

Grain (DM) feeding guidelines for a grass based pasture system during the spring grazing season[ab]

4% FCM Production (lb)	lb. Grain	Grain:Milk[c]
>80	16-20	1:4 to 1:5
70	14-18	1:4 to 1:5
60	11-14	1:5
50	7-10	1:5 to 1:6
<40	5-7	1:6 to 1:7

[a]Assume 1300 lb. bodyweight

[b]These guidelines are based on high quality grass pasture available in adequate quantities assuming the approximate DMI. Lower quality forage will require more grain. Maximum grain DM fed should be equivalent to about 2% of bodyweight. Some adjustment of grain should be made based on body condition scores and stage of lactation. Lower amounts are likely needed when the pasture contains legumes.

[c]Grain:milk ratio (DM basis).

INSERT CHART

Fiber

Pasture is our lowest cost forage, and we should maximize the intake of the pasture. However, the lush spring pasture that is 80-85 percent moisture can lead to a fast passage rate of feedstuffs through the digestive tract. This high quality pasture can be low in "effective fiber" or cud chewing. Feeding a few pounds of long hay is often beneficial.

Corn silage can be excellent complementary forage because it adds needed nonfiber carbohydrates and "dilutes" out the high protein in pasture. Corn silage fed in a TMR with a properly formulated grain ration can be excellent supplemental feed for pasture.

The amount of grain or supplement to feed depends on the "manager's eye" when monitoring milk production and body condition. Recording average daily milk production per cow can be an excellent management tool to monitor the effectiveness of the feeding program and quality of pasture and to adjust the amounts to feed as pasture availability may change. Work with your nutritionist in developing this supplemental feeding program.

SRBC Extends Water Use Deadline

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC) announced an extension until January 1998 for agricultural water use registrations during a meeting Thursday at the Best Western Eden Resort Inn and Conference Center in Lancaster.

The SRBC held a meeting that combined a public hearing on two proposals for policy changes, along with a regular business meeting, and a special panel discussion on recreation, fish and wildlife considerations.

For farmers, it has been publicized for some time that the SRBC has been requesting water-use registrations from agricultural users — those who withdrawl more than 10,000 gallons per day on a 30-day average, and even those who use less.

There is no fee for registration and the registration does not set up the farmer to be liable to receive any kind of negative regulatory action, other than what may, futuristically, affect everyone.

The fact is this: water is a limited resource, but people's demand for water is unlimited. Water users in the Susquehanna River Basin are pushing, if not exceding, the limit of fresh water availability in their areas.

While the extreme wetness of the past year (record making) may have helped to erase memories, it should be noted that not only have people especially in the lower basin area experienced severe drought through the 1980s and into the 1990s, but some areas went on emergency restrictions because of shortages in non-drought years.

In the meantime, however, water using projects and residential development have continued to be approved and carried out.

The SRBC, a multi-state/federal compact authority has control over the flows in the Susquehanna River Basin that are commesurate with its responsbility that the river and

Wool Queen Selected At Sheep And Wool Festival

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

WEST FRIENDSHIP, Md. — Tens of thousands of visitors came to the Howard County Fairgrounds here recently to enjoy the 24th annual Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival. Sponsored by the Maryland Sheep Breeders Association, the non-profit festival seeks to educate the public on sheep and wool products. The two day festival offers shearing and herding demonstrations, breed and fleece shows, a feeder lamb show and sale, and skein, garment, and shepard's lead contests.

"We're very proud of our festival," said Bob Dinsmore, President of the Maryland Sheep Breeders Association. "It's the largest sheep show in the country, and the largest festival in the country with an agricultural theme."

Kicking off the festivities was the selection of this year's Maryland Lamb and Wool Queen. Kirra Louise Pilson, daughter of Donald and Sharron Pilson of Thurmont is the new Queen. A member of the Catoctin Highlanders 4-H club, Kirra raises Border Cheviots and Hampshires for her projects, and also shows dogs. She wore a Scottish kilt with a loose fitting wool sweater she created that brought her a champion ribbon at the county level. Kirra will act as an ambassador for the industry working showrings, handing out ribbons, and making presentations throughout the upcoming year.

Other lamb and wool royalty selected at the festival were three new Lamb and Wool Princesses: Megan Rynarzewski from Howard County, and Jennifer Hobbs and Jennifer Biser from Frederick County. Judges for the pageant were Bob Dinsmore, Elyssa Hevner, and Lynn Ingraham.

Judges Jim Marshall, Jr. and Budd Martin had the difficult task of selecting a supreme champion ram and ewe from the 859 entries in the breed shows.

Supreme champion ram honors went to a Corriedale ram lamb exhibited by Geoffrey Ruppert of Rupperts Corriedales in Fairfield, Pennsylvania. The judge in the breed class remarked on the lamb's outstanding length of body. Dr. Ruppert and his sister, Sarah McCall, both vets, and parents Bill and Ann Ruppert are involved in the breeding operation. This was the second time in three years Rupperts Corriedales showed the supreme champion at the festival. In 1995 they won with a senior Corriedale lamb sired by the same ram as this year's winner. January 6th & 7th, 1998
Memorial Hall
York Fairgrounds • York, PA

A Two Day Show? Absolutely! By marketing ONLY to the full time farmer, we can bring in thousands of REAL BUYERS in a two day period. You may see more faces in a 9 or 10 day show, but we ELIMINATE the curiosity seekers and bring in qualified buyers...and that's time well spent!!

In January? January is the time when farmers are making decisions for the upcoming year. If there is a quiet time around the farm it's after the holidays and before spring planting season. Farmers are busy people. A farm show where all equipment lines and every service imaginable is represented saves them valuable time.

In York, PA? York is located in the southeastern region of Pennsylvania. This agricultural region which encompasses the Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey market area is one of the richest agricultural regions on the east coast. The York fairgrounds offers room for expansion and a state of the art facility. Great lighting, a beautiful modern facility, and a staff of cooperative people made our choice an easy one.

Sale Celebrates 23rd Year

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

FREDERICK, Md. — Thirty-five Brown Swiss calves went through the sale ring for an average of $1,501 at the Mid-Atlantic Brown Swiss Calf Sale.

The sale, held recently at the Frederick Fairgrounds, celebrated its 23rd year with the second highest average in sale history.

Sponsored by the Maryland Brown Swiss Association, the sale offered top pedigreed calves with good type designed to interest the investment and merchandising buyer.

"This was one of the best groups of calves ever offered at the Mid-Atlantic Brown Swiss Calf Sale, some of the best All-American, Bell Ringer, and blue ribbon genetics offered in the country," said Cindy Warner, sale committee member. "Besides good calves, the sale also featured and sold outstanding embryo packages from leading cow families and breed greats on a national-caliber level to take the breeder into the 21st century."

The top-selling animal, Long View Jub Emory Julie, was a large December calf sired by Victory Acres Jubilation Emory and out of a Blend daughter. The calf, consigned by Harold and Peggy Long of Thurmond, Md., brought $2,550, and was purchased by Steve Watts, from Ohio.

The second highest selling calf at $2,250 was an October 1st calf GS Prophet Plum. Sired by Top Acres Dotson Prophet and out of Trout Run Emory Pam "2E," the calf was consigned by GS Associates of New Windsor, Md., Jeremy Long of Emmitsburg, Md. purchased the calf.

Twenty-four more calves sold for $1,000 or more. The quality of consignments merited good prices, and calves went to Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, New Jersey, Florida, and New York, as well as to Maryland.

"We had another good sale with solid and consistent prices which continues to indicate the demand and interest of new buyers and repeat buyers at this sale," said Dennis Smith, vice president of the Maryland Brown Swiss Association. "The demand for Brown Swiss is on the rise, and the Mid-Atlantic Calf Sale is the place to get a good one!"

There were six embryo packages consisting of three #1 frozen embryos that sold for an average of $1,070. The highest package sold for $650 each, for a total of $1,950. It combined the Snowstorm family with the Priscilla bloodline. Sun-Made Garbo Prodigy ET, an Ensign son from Top Acres Present ET, EX-92, and Certified, was combined with Golden Sun Billy Starbrite, "2E." The package was consigned by Sunshine Genetics, Whitewater, Wis., and purchased by Calvin Wilson, Phoenixville.

All calves sold are entered in the Mid-Atlantic Brown Swiss Futurity with the first payment made by the Maryland Association. The fourth annual Futurity will be held Sunday, August 31 during the Maryland State Fair in Timonium, Md..

Denny Remsburg was the auctioneer for the sale, and Wayne Sliker read the pedigrees. The Brown Swiss Junior helped around the ring with Aimee Smith, Laura Sigler, and Amanda Stowers presenting the calves. Ringmen were Mike Birch, Howard Fleming, and Dennis Long. The animals were fitted by Bob McComb, with Robert Sigler assisting and helping with barn responsibilities.

Also supervising the barn were Howard Fleming, Mike Birch, and Harold Long. The sale committee consisted of Harold Long, Howard Fleming, Dennis Smith, Scott Hood, Allen Bassler, and Cindy Warner.

New State Agriculture Secretary

agricultural and rural issues. He currently is a political science lecturer at Juniata College.

In the early April days immediately following Gov. Ridge's still-unfully explained request for the resignation of current Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius, Hayes's name was circulated throughout the agricultural, political community in Harrisburg.

In conversations, he was considered by pundits as perhaps the person who could most likely replace Brosius and be well accepted across the board by the agricultural community, including the grassroots sector where the dismissal of Brosius perhaps generated the greatest amount of cynicism.

Brosius proved himself to be popular with both bodies of the Legislature and with both parties. In fact, there is pending legislation, that lawmakers have said will be approved this session, that would name a state-funded agricultural law library the "Charles C. Brosius Agricultural Law Center."

A Senate resolution is pending too to honor him.

While Brosius has continued to serve and is to resign at the end of the month, he has maintained a closed mouth on the subject, though it was apparent to many that he too was as surprised as the agricultural community at Ridge's request for his resignation.

In fact, a general consensus seems to be that one of the main reasons that Ridge's original selection of Brosius as secretary had been so highly welcomed and regarded by the agricultural community was because of Brosius's distance from active partisan politics, his lack of a personal motive to seek the office, and the respect he holds within the ag community as a highly principled businessman and statesman who conducts himself with dignity.

As a secretary, Brosius has been supportive of bipartisan government actions and policies that work to improve the opportunities for all of agriculture, instead of select factions.

Brosius also gained a reputation as one who has worked diligently for real, practical solutions to the state's agricultural problems. There is a long list of legislative accomplishments during Brosius's brief tenure.

Nevertheless, as has been made clear by many in Harrisburg, the position of agriculture secretary is a political appointment by the governor.

The agriculture secretary is a member of the governor's cabinet, as are the other heads of the executive departments and agencies under the jurisdiction of the governor.

Therefore, it is not necessary for the governor, as chief executive office of the state, to offer the public a reason for changing his administrative team members.

The sense of the state legislative leadership has been that, while still unsure why Brosius was asked to step down, it's in the best interest of agriculture to move on.

While Hayes's name was circulated in the speculation mill, along with at least one other as a potential candidate for the job, he was out of the country at the time and didn't return to Pennsylvania until April 30.

It was pressumed that if Ridge's advisors picked up on Hayes as a candidate for a Brosius replacement, and Ridge would accept it, that Hayes would be offered the job and either reject it quietly, or that the announcement would come quickly.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday this week Hayes was in Harrisburg making courtesy visits to all 50 senators, as is traditional protocol of nominees.

By law, the state Senate confirms or does not confirm nominations by the governor during active session.

The state Senate completed its May schedule this week and is scheduled to meet for three days each of the first three weeks in June, and for five days the last week of June. That schedule is expected to be considerably shortened.

The June Senate session schedule is normally made heavier than other months because the state budget is usually one of the last items to be hashed out by the Legislature (the state fiscal year is from July 1 to June 30).

This year, the Legislature approved a budget (pretty much the one Ridge proposed that has been called good for agriculture) two weeks ago (setting a record). Therefore, it is not imperative for the Senate to complete its proposed June schedule.

The Legislature then normally recesses for the summer.

In order for Hayes to have enough time to meet with the members of the Senate prior to a June confirmation, he had to try to meet with all 50 this week while they were in session and in one locale.

Wednesday evening, Hayes said he still had a few senators remaining with which to meet, though of the majority with whom he had met, he received a response he described as, "... very warm and supportive."

He explained that on the eve of his departure to Poland on a mission associated with Juniata College (where he was working to establish a summer language program for farm children in rural villages in southeastern Poland), he had heard some "rumblings" about the governor's desire to change agriculture secretaries.

It wasn't until his return that he was completely filled in on what had progressed and that same day, he met with Gov. Ridge and accepted the offer.

"Upon returning, I met with the governor and indicated to Gov. Ridge that I would be happy to (accept the secretary position).

"I would not have done that if Gov. Ridge had not been supportive of agriculture," Hayes said.

Hayes explained that he had worked on Ridge's campaign and had traveled with him across Pennsylvania to county fairs and other areas.

According to Hayes, Ridge had expressed strong support of agriculture and continues to do so. Hayes said that prior to running for governor, as a U.S. congressman, Ridge represented and supported a rural and agricultural district.

Hayes said he supported the governor in his efforts.

"I also know the Legislature, that there is strong support (for agriculture)," Hayes said.

The combination of a pro-agricultural governor and Legislature is the kind of environment, "I like to work in," he said.

Learn To Be Eagles, GSPA Director Tells FFA Members

ing Arts (GSPA) group, wants to ruffle their feathers.

In the 33 years he has spoken to FFA members and directed hundreds of high school students, he gave them one objective. Deen showed them how to raise their arms and learn to fly like an eagle.

And the same message he has been giving FFA leaders for decades was repeated Wednesday afternoon as he greeted more than 100 FFA officers at the 1997 Eastern Region FFA Leadership Conference at Ephrata High School.

In many classrooms, Deen has told students to live each day as though it was their last. He repeated the same message on Wednesday: carpe diem — Latin for "seize the day." Deen believes "too many young people don't seize the day."

Deen, who told the members he will turn 60 years old in September, said, "I want more people to seize the day.

"You need to be a little different than everybody else," he told the officers, taking the first steps in leading their chapters.

"Learn to march to a different drummer."

Deen told the leaders to use their unique talents to bring change to their chapters and community. "We need to have more young people who are flying above all the turmoil that goes on in life," he said. FFA is unique, Deen told them, because more young people are involved in FFA than in any other student organization. "So many of you in FFA seem to know where it's at."

Deen said in his experience, he's never seen FFA'ers who hold down lots of responsibilities on farms and in agribusiness walk around, saying, "I'm bored, I don't care."

Deen, who received the honorary FFA degree some time ago, is retiring this year after 35 years of teaching in the county. He told the FFA members they are the future.

"When I leave my career in education, what I'll remember will be all the young people who made FFA what it is."

Deen plans to continue on with a career that includes reaching young people. He presented his "keys" to successful living by leading off with a quote he came across several years ago: "I want to be thoroughly used up when I die," he said.

"How many people pass through life thoroughly used up?" he said.

When Deen decided to retire, he told his high school admistrators, family, and friends that he was "moving on." Deen told them that retirement did not meaning giving up. "I still have my dreams, aspirations, and visions," he said.

He told the FFA members to maintain a sense of humor. He remembered when he first started teaching, years ago, a student came up to him and said, "Mr. Deen, you need to be more childlike. Not childish, but childlike," he said.

Deen told the FFA'ers, "Don't

Coordinating the reporters workshop, from left, Dan Kreider, Cedar Crest vice president and county reporter, and Charles Aurentz, Lebanon County and Cedar Crest FFA president.

Director Tells FFA Members

let anybody make you old before your time."

He also told them to develop a sense of compassion. One student in a class of his was always changing his hair color. One time it was blue, then it was pink, then it was yellow. The student came in with earrings in all sorts of places: on the lips, nose, ear, just all over. Deen asked the student why he wore so many earrings and the student replied, "just for fun." While Deen didn't necessarily approve of the earrings, he never criticized the student for wearing them.

FFA'ers should learn to develop an inner strength, one that says, "I know why I'm here. I know where I'm going." Deen also told them to "fingerprint" other people's lives as a leader and team player.

He told them a story. One time he was introduced to a blind person learning braille. When she met him, she asked Deen if she could "feel" his face. Reluctantly, Deen allowed her to — slowly, she worked her fingers over his forehead, the eyebrows, down across the eyelids, over top of the nose, and down his face. She said to him, "I can tell you are a kind person. All the lines (on your face) go up. With unhappy people, the lines droop down."

Deen said young people should learn to celebrate life more. One word has faded from general use, he said: "razzle-dazzle." He asked them, "When was the last time in class you were dazzled?"

The GSPA director told the students that if tomorrow Steven Spielberg, the famous Hollywood film director, would phone and talk to him, Deen would be "dazzled."

"Celebrate who you are in light of what you have been given," he said. "Give yourself away."

As he steps down from teaching, Deen told them, "Ninety-eight percent of the time I love what I teach," he said. "Do you know how it is to leave what you still enjoy?"

Deen told a story of one student, a boy who had a behavior problem. He worked on a farm, day in and out, from ninth grade until his senior year. He was an FFA member. He went from misbehaving in four years to being one of four graduation commencement speakers. He learned to be an eagle. Deen remembers the boy's mother who almost passed out from joy and disbelief when she saw her son speaking during graduation ceremonies.

Deen told FFA members to treat others like you want them to treat you — energize them. He told them to keep mentally, physically, and spiritually fit. Invest yourself in the lives of other people. And turn your weaknesses into strengths.

Ryan Groff, Manheim vice president, successfully works the zig-zag portion of the ropes course at the leadership conference at Ephrata High School.

FFA Activities

A low ropes course organized and operated by Ben Ehrhart, Narvon, provided team challenges for the FFA members.

Included in these group activities, which help develop communication, group planning, decision making, goal setting, and other important life skills, was the zig-zag, a method to use lumber to traverse the ground. Also included were the Amazon, where one individual walks a gangplank and uses a stick of wood to retrieve a pail; the spider web, where individuals must cooperate with the group to successfully thread a difficult rope maze; and magic boots, where individuals work together to traverse a distance.

Other workshops were held. In one, Dan Kreider and Charles Aurentz, both of Cedar Crest, coordinated a reporter session on how to submit stories for publication. Others included president and vice president leadership duties, and secretary, treasurer, reporter, photography, and other leadership training sessions.

Career booths included the Pennsylvania Game Commission, the Fish and Boat Commission, Maryland University Institute of Applied Agriculture, Pa. Bureau of Forestry, and Cobleskill College.

New State Agriculture Secretary

The interest Hayes had in helping Ridge in his campaign for governor was not to acquire a position for himself in Ridge's Administration, Hayes said.

"I wasn't campaigning for a position at that time, nor this time," Hayes said. "I did serve as chairman of his transition team for education, and I also worked with Ridge on some other cabinet matters, but at no time was I in search of a position.

"In fact, I indicated (to Ridge) that I was not in search of an appointment," he said.

Others have supported that statement, acknowledging that while some who work for campaigns seek personal gains, that Hayes was not interested in continuing on with a job.

"There was widespread speculation (that Hayes was seeking a position), but I didn't add to the speculation," Hayes said.

"But at this moment in time, we have a different landscape.

"Given the gravity of this moment and all of its aspects, both human and agency wise, industry wise, and governmentally, I thought I should accept the request to serve in this capacity."

He said that he will continue to lecture at Juniata College on occassion, but it would not interfere with his duties as secretary.

State Sen. David Brightbill, who is Senate majority Whip, as well as vice chairman of the Senate Rules and Executive Nominations Committee, met with Hayes Monday afternoon.

Brightbill has been in office since 1983 and has some preknowledge of Hayes, though Hayes worked in the House.

"I think (Hayes) will be very, very well received," Brightbill said.

"When Secretary Brosius resigned, I said that Ridge would have to come up with a blue chip nominee, and they came up with a blue chip nominee.

"My judgement is that he will be confirmed ... before mid-June," Brightbill said, explaining that there are some technical paperwork filings that Hayes has to make prior to being confirmed.

Sen. Noah Wenger, chairman of the Senate Republican Caucus, and vice chairman of its Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee agreed.

"Sam's a good choice for the agriculture secretary position at this particular time. He has the background and the political savy he'll need. I'm pleased that the governor has selected Sam Hayes.

"Sam and I served together in the House," Wenger said. "When I first came to the House in 1977, Sam had already been there for a couple of terms. He was a very helpful kind of person. Someone to look up to. Then he served as (the Republican leader), so I've known Sam over the years and have a high regard for him.

"I would think he would be easily confirmed by the Senate," Wenger said, adding that he met with Hayes Monday morning. "I will say he will be well received and confirmed in a timely basis."

State Sen. Dan Delp, majority chairman of the Senate Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee, who was first elected in 1994, said that while he had never met Hayes prior to first thing Monday morning, Hayes' reputation preceded him.

"It was the first time I met with Sam. He seemed like a very nice guy," Delp said.

"During our meeting, I asked him some specific questions about where he sees some problems over the next couple of years. He clearly has a firm grasp of issues facing the agricultural community."

Delp noted that Hayes's extensive agricultural and legislative background should prove beneficial in working with the Legislature to continue the progress made so far.

"That's clearly an important function," Delp said.

"I heard about two weeks ago Sam's name was being considered. I never personally met him, but I had heard of him," he said.

Over the next couple of weeks, Delp said he got calls from at least five constituents per week who had heard that Hayes was being considered.

"And everyone did know Sam and thought he would be great (for agriculture secretary). All the feedback I got, prior to the official announcement was positive."

The Pennsylvania State Grange, the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, and others have stated their support of Hayes as a new secretary of agriculture.

Mel Eckhouse, a legislative representative for the PFB, said that while the organization did not have any problems with Brosius, Hayes is a good choice.

"The (Hayes) name has been

New State Agriculture Secretary

floating around for a while as a top choice — there were other candidates I'm sure — who could bring the agricultural community back together, if there are any wounds to be healed," Eckhouse said.

"He has a proven track record where he was before (as a state representative). You don't get to that position (majority leader) in the House if you don't have leadership abilities."

According to Brenda Shambaugh, legislative director for the Pa. State Grange, "We fully support Sam Hayes for secretary of agriculture. In addition to his leadership qualities and legislative background, he's been an active Grange member, and a past member of our statewide Legislative Committee, and we look foward to working him when he comes on board with the administration on June 1."

Hayes Background

Hayes and his wife Elizabeth have three sons, all of whom were involved in 4-H and FFA while in school and who showed market lambs and registered sheep at county fairs, the state Farm Show and at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition.

Hayes' background includes growing up in rural Huntingdon County and working on farms while in high school. He was a member of 4-H and FFA and owned registered Hampshire sheep.

A graduate of Tyrone Area High School, Hayes went directly into the Army and, after three years of active duty, attended Penn State University where he received a bachelor's degree (1964) from the College of Agriculture and a master's degree (1965) in education.

Upon completing that education, he returned to active duty in the Army for two years as a commissioned officer in infantry and military intelligence in Vietnam, earning a Bronze Star.

After returning to civilian life, he worked as a social studies teacher until being elected in 1970 to represent Blair and Huntingdon counties in the state House of Representatives. He continued to be re-elected until 1990 (term ended 1992).

The recipient of an honorary doctor of law degree from Juniata College, he worked for agriculture and rural Pennsylvania, serving on the conference committee for farmland preservation, working to help secure capital improvements for Penn State's University Park, such as the Agricultural Sciences Building, the poultry center, and computer technology for the main campus and 67 county cooperative extension offices.

He was an advocate for the Governor's School of Agriculture, the Noxious Weed statute, helped secure state appropriations to support K.I.L.E and the Pa. Farm Show, and worked for laws helping to finance the state's bridges and highways.

Hayes also was the legislative sponsor of school subsidies for small rural school districts and a legislative mentor for the Pa. FFA Legislative Leadership Conference.

Memberships include being past president of the Pennsylvania FFA Foundation, a current member of the Warrior's Mark Grange, the board of directors of the Huntingdon County Agricultural Association which runs the county fair, the state Historic Preservation Board, the State Board of Education, the American Legion, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

His numerous awards include being inducted into the Pennsylvania Livestock Association Hall of Fame, being named an honory county agent by the Pa. Association of County Agents, receiving the PFB Barn Raiser Award (presented to individuals who have demonstrated outstanding efforts for agriculture), three awards from the Pa. Rural Electric Cooperative (Miracle Mile, Special Leadership and Man of the Year awards), the Lawmaker of the Year Award from the Pa. Retailers Association, the Guardian of Small Business Award from the Pa. National Federation of Independent Business, a special leadership award from the State System of Higher Education, a One of a Kind Award from the Associated Pennsylvania Constructors, and the H.A. "Cappy" Thompson Founders Award from the Pa. State Association of Township Supervisors.

PDA Consolidates Health Programs

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Animal health programs within the Pennsylvania Agriculture Department have been consolidated to provide better service to the agricultural industry in the commonwealth, according to Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius.

The Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory, the divisions of the Bureau of Animal Industry and the Animal Health and Diagnostic Commission will be combined under a new bureau, Animal Health and Diagnostic Services.

"The consolidation provides an opportunity for improved efficiency and economies for the department," Brosius said. "We will continue to provide prompt service to the constituencies we serve."

Dr. Sherbyn Ostrich will serve as acting director of the new bureau, and as acting chief of the Laboratory Division. Dr. Max VanBuskirk, formerly director of the Bureau of Animal Industry, will retire on June 20.

During the interim period he will help to develop the rules and regulations needed for implementation of the Domestic Animal Health Act of 1996.

Dr. Fred Rommel will move to his former position as Veterinary Laboratory microbiology service manager.

The opening of the new diagnostic laboratory last September has shortened turnaround times for testing and optimized computer links with laboratories within the animal health system.

The vitality of animal agriculture, representing $1.36 billion, is basic to the economic success of agriculture. The improved delivery of services to protect the health of animals helps ensure the safety of the food supply to consumers.

It also supports the stringent health requirements of the export markets. Agriculture exports for 1995 accounted for $923.4 million.

Increasing exports is a priority of the Ridge Administration, and the combined resources of the Bureau of Animal Health and Diagnostic Services can ensure the industry's ability to be competitive on the world market.

Hershey School's New Hort Center Reveals Ag Program's Diversity

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Some of the best programs at the Milton Hershey School just got better.

A short time ago, members of the school student body, staff, alumni, and board representatives broke ground on a 18,250 square foot horticulture building on the Milton Hershey School (MHS) campus.

"With this new horticulture center, hands-on activity will come to life," said Marcia W. Paterson, director of the school's Agricultural and Environmental Education (AEE) program.

The school's trademark — hands-on educational experience offered through "real world" projects that has proven so effective for thousands of school graduates — will be emphasized using some of the latest technology and techniques at the center.

The new building is situated on 131 acres on Meadow Lane just north of Rt. 322. The center is one of four MHS AEE centers scheduled for renovation or new construction, according to the school's five-year strategic plan.

The horticultural center will be one of the four centers to serve the approximately 1,100 students enrolled at MHS, according to Paterson.

The center, designed by St. Onge, Ruff and Associates, will include compartmentalized greenhouse projects matched to the appropriate student age and grade levels, according to Warren H. Hitz, associate director, AEE. Construction is being managed by Reynolds Construction at a cost of about $2 million.

Three separate greenhouses on cement floors each measure 100 feet long by 24 feet wide and are spaced 20 feet apart. The greenhouse environment will be completely controlled by computer. The greenhouses will be enclosed by clear lexan, said Hitz.

One section of the center, the greenhouses, will include six completely separate zones. Elementary school children will be introduced to the greenhouse environment with several "beginner" projects. In another, high school students will study the control of greenhouse lighting. They will also examine benching processes, including ebb and flow and roller benching.

According to Hitz, students will examine tropical plants and foliage systems. Still another will examine aquaculture and hydroponics projects.

A headhouse runs the full length at the end of each greenhouse.

The north section will include the AEE office, conference rooms, and administrative offices, including horticultural staff and faculty. Research and graduate program offices are part of this segment.

Recently the Milton Hershey School broke ground on its new horticulture center. From left, Paul Clark, MHS director of office of project management and Derry Township supervisor; Marcia Paterson, MHS director, Agriculture and Environmental Education program; Christopher Rand, MHS FFA president and Senior Hall Student; Dr. William L. Lepley, MHS president and CEO; and William H. Alexander, MHS board of managers chair.

The middle part of the complex will include a laboratory area with a walk-in refrigerator and refrigerated display cases. Also included will be a plant tissue culture laboratory. On the side will be a resource room with computers and a research library. The computers will have access to the Internet. The conference room would be able to accommodate 50 people.

Hitz indicated that studies will include integrated pest management in a greenhouse environment. The entire center is designed with an "open architecture" to accommodate projected student needs.

The "student-driven" design forms the basis of the hands-on concept of Hershey's AEE program, according to Hitz. "All the office space can be redesigned and reconfigured," he said. "The entire greenhouse is computer controlled, including the environment, the lighting, and other items."

The AEE plan is to combine the educational aspects of the school with the hands-on production approach to the school's philosophy. "We had to meld those together," Hitz said. What planners came up with was a greenhouse center that will adapt to the projects of the students.

"We think in terms of the educational value in each square foot of space we have," said Hitz.

Scott Seibert, instructional adviser, will be manager of the new center when it opens at the beginning of the 1997-1998 school year in September. A school-wide celebration will mark the grand opening, according to Milton Hershey School officials.

During the recent groundbreaking ceremony, MHS President and CEO Dr. William L. Lepley said, "The new horticulture center serves as an excellent example of Milton Hershey School hand-related resources, enabling the nurturing and education of today's children while incorporating the school's best traditions — such as our agricultural heritage, work ethic, and educational values."

According to Marcia Paterson, AEE director, the center is one of four centers to provide "a bridge between the school's history and the future development of our students as productive citizens in the 21st century," she wrote in the Sept./Oct. 1996 issue of The Agricultural Education Magazine. "AEE links to the future by showing students the relationship agriculture and the environment have on life in general an in various career opportunities."

At the center, projects include fruit and vegetable trials, specialty gardens, and a deciduous tree nursery. Other centers include the environmental center, located on 85 acres that include environmental landscaping and stream bank restoration projects; the animal center, located on 81 acres and including large animals, small animals, and aquaculture projects; and the dairy and foods processing center, located on 135 acres and including an average of 60 head of Holstein cattle with a herd average of about 20,000 pounds.

In the magazine article, Paterson wrote, "The AEE centers serve as vital links to the world of work and continuing education through knowledge of specific career pathways and development of employability skills, including attitudes toward work." AEE is "an action-centered program of student interactions within the scope of agriculture and the environment so that students are prepared to enter the private sector or continue their education and further their skills until they ultimately select a career."

At a recent interview at the Milton Hershey School, Paterson indicated how important it is to teach students more than what a loaf of bread might cost. It's important to stress the importance of "field to table" knowledge — who is involved in the total picture of food production. Students in many schools know so little about where food comes from. Along with some of the environmental aspects of AEE, students get a more complete picture.

Also, through AEE, the school can focus on the student in helping them to determine their careers. Internship programs are available for students.

In one case, a student, Amanda Estep, involved in the dairy and foods processing center, studied artificial insemination (AI) and now wants to work as a certified AI technician. Two other students from a strong urban background worked on several successful beekeeping projects through the AEE program.

Paterson said the important thing for AEE educators is to not look at learning about agriculture in a "vacuum," but to have students look at the "holistic" perspective.

Paterson said, "If it's applied correctly, current, and makes sense, it's real life."

SRBC Extends Water Use Deadline

its tributaries are managed in such a way as to fairly provide residents of the basin with their needs for safe quality fresh water.

In so doing, the SRBC has to ensure that the river and its tributaries don't dry up.

The agency not only has to contend with steam-generating industry drying up supplies, but those seeking to drill wells to supply others with groundwater, water companies taking and selling both groundwater and surface water to residential and commercial customers, bottled water companies hauling water out of the basin area, and other activities that hasten the flow of water out of the basin and thus dry it out faster.

The reason for knowing and documenting who is claiming to use a specific quantity of water is to be able to create a groundwork for establishing historic demand of water.

Separate from SRBC, but related to the issue, is the state's authority over establishing water-use restrictions during drought periods or other water emergencies.

Regardless of whether a farm's water use is registered or not, during a drought the state already has a priority list of who gets to use water and for what reason.

The protection of livestock is a high priority, while realistically, a crop perhaps could be allowed to whither instead of allowing a farmer to irrigate the crop if the water is needed for human consumption first and the general public decides that the farmer should have crop insurance.

Where disputes over water use and priorities can be expected to arise would be in situations where a farm's water use is undocumented and a drought occurs and residential development neighbors call police and authorities to report that the farmer is drying up the creek.

What the SRBC, in cooperation with DEP and the state Fish Commission, is attempting to do is create a data base of stream flow demand for the streams flowing into, and the main branch of, the Susquehanna River.

Along with that, there is to be an attempt to measure and record what a minimum stream flow should be for each specific streambed.

Setting and protecting minimum flows is important to the preservation of water quality.

Just as moisture values of chopped corn silage have to fall within a specific range in order for proper fermentation to take place, the aquatic life of a stream

Wool Queen

May, said Dr. Ruppert.

The first time out was also the charm for Tom and Beth Hines Columbia yearling ewe. The homebred ewe was selected supreme champion ewe of the show. She was first shown in the white wool medium division, where the judge commented on her stylishness, her very good, even fleece, and good feet and legs. The Hines, of Hines Sheep Co. in Elyria, Ohio, raise about 55 Columbia ewes and a half dozen Southdowns on their farm.

The Shepard's Award is presented to the exhibitor who mounts the most educational and attractive pen display and presents sheep well throughout the festival. Kim and Jane Caulfield, Far Our Farm, Cornersville, Tennessee were honored with the award this year. Honorable mention went to Bill and Linda Koeppel of Cape House Far, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Two national shows were held in conjunction with the festival this year. In the National Border Leicester Show, Laurie Forst Acton of Three Pines Farm, Hartland, Vermont showed the champion ram, and Brian Atkinson, of Atkinson Acres, Stayner, Ontario took both champions ewe and premier exhibitor honors. Don and Mary Grant of Eldonview Farms, Woodville, Ontario showed the animal with the best fleece. In the National Karakul Show, Page Jacobs of Wooly Sheep Company, Coolridge, Arizona had the champion ram, ewe, and was premier exhibitor. Richard Larson of Old Gjerpen Farm, Nokesville, Virginia won for best fleece.

In the fleece show, Franklin, Missouri residents Andy and Desi McMurry had the champion natural colored and overall grand champion fleece. Roselee Pisarczyk of North Brookfield, Massachussetts led the white wool division with a Romney fleece. The Lincoln fleece entered by Patricia McKinney of York, Pennsylvania beat out winners in 10 other breed classes to be named breed class champion.

Water Use Deadline

bottom — from bacteria, fungus, and plants, to insects, crustaceans etc. — has to have a specific range of water flow over time.

Too much at one time and there is severe damage. Too little at one time and there is severe damage.

Even if water flows are steadied to fall within a healthy range, left to recover on its own, it can take many, many years for a stream to regain its health and thus cleanse the water properly and efficiently.

A healthy stream means cleans, safe and available water.

That is a long-term goal of the SRBC and several different agencies and organizations — to achieve a rational range of stream flows to go along with a specific stream and its intended uses.

Farmers who document their water use by registering it with the SRBC are not only protecting their own interests, but are helping to establish how much water needs to be flowing down a streambed in order to continue to serve all the stream's users and still stay healthy.

The deadline extension was recommended by the SRBC's Agricultural Advisory Committee. The committee also recommended that those who fail to register their water use by the extended deadline, in effect, be ignored.

In essence, registering water use with the SRBC is laying claim to water use.

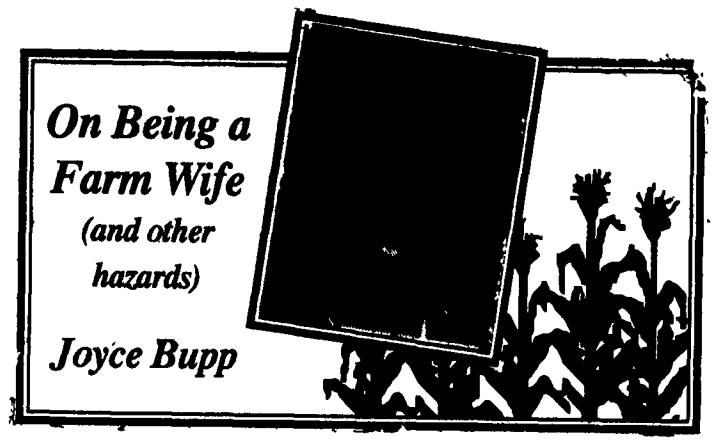
THE BEST TIRES IN THE WORLD HAVE GOODYEAR WRITTEN ALL OVER THEM



Last week, it was empty nests that kept life interesting.

This week, the full ones are enlivening our routine.

It started with the blackbirds.

Now, blackbirds are not particularly a favorite friend of farmers. A flock of these shiny, black-feathered grain thieves can almost take over a building, creating lots of mess and potentially spreading disease to poultry and livestock. Any suburban or rural home owner who has wrestled with a bunch of noisy, messy blackbirds roosting in the neighborhood for any length of time can probably identify with those problems.

But, it's their nesting habitats that have caught The Farmer's attention lately.

He started up our old diesel truck early last week, to begin hauling in loads of chopped rye to pack in the silo for summer forage supplies. After a brief period, the truck's normal roar sounded somewhat muffled, followed by a sudden popping sound.

And out of the truck's exhaust stack blew the contents of a blackbird's nest.

His relating of this incident concerned me. Could such a nest in the exhaust system cause overheating of the stalks and stems and start a fire? After an unprecedented two fires in different tractors this spring, I'm absolutely paranoid about such possibilities.

A day or two later, he started up the truck again. After a brief period, the truck's normal roar again sounded somewhat muffled. Followed by ... you guessed it.

Out blew another blackbird's nest. And the truck had been parked at a different location than before.

With all the trees and numerous possible sites around the farm buildings that would make much safer nurseries, what is it about a truck exhaust stack that so intrigues this blackbird? Perhaps it's a relative of the one that built a nest under the hood of the International 826. When the tractor was started up, out flew the bird. Followed by an egg that tumbled to the ground.

And, are robins any smarter?

We enjoy robins. They are the very essense of spring, Mother Nature's perky, red-breasted reminder that the cold and bluster of winter will indeed end and pleasant weather reign again. Robins gladden our hearts when they return to prowl the back yard, pull fat earthworms from the lawn and lyrically close our days with glad songs echoing from the treetops as daylight fades.

But when it comes to home-site selection, robins display a genetic flaw. Not only did we have blackbird nests in the truck, but the damp trailer it sometimes pulls likewise became an egg homesite. In between battling with blackbirds over the exhaust stack, The Farmer removed a still-empty robin's nest from the frame underneath the dump trailer. He delivered it to the porch, where I even have two, perfect, sky-blue eggs to display in it, retrieved from the flower border. How they came to be there remains another mystery.

Another precocious robin has brought our manure hauling process to a halt. This one carefully constructed its nursery nest on the spin-spreader of the manure truck, the equipment that evenly spreads the rich, organic liquid as the truck passes over the field. The four blue eggs inside still await hatching. Though manure hauling was on hold anyway, while we planted corn and chopped silage, it remains an essential, seasonal chore. Anybody want to adopt a robin family?

The above personal observations on the insensibilities of birds choosing farm equipment in which to live may help clarify the source of a word long-used as a "put-down" in our societial linguistics.

Birdbrain.

State Rabbit Breeders Name Royalty

MILL HALL (Clinton Co.) — Twelve youth from Pennsylvania and neighboring states competed for honors in the 1997 youth rabbit and cavy royalty contest sponsored by the Pennsylvania State Rabbit Breeders Association (PaSRBA). The contest for youth members was held on April 26 at the PaSRBA annual convention at the Clinton County Fairgrounds near Mill Hall.

The new Rabbit Queen and Cavy Queen is Karen Keyser, 15, of York, and Germantown, MD. Russel Steele, 17, of Greensburg, is the new Rabbit King. Karen and Russel will represent the PaSRBA and the rabbit industry at rabbit-related events throughout the year, while Karen will promote cavies, too.

Karen is also the commodity representative, and will make the association's presentation to the governor at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Russel and Karen were selected from other 15- to 18-year-olds on the basis of their responses on an application and interview, their performance on a written examination, breed and variety identification, judging and handling skills, and their promotional talks.

Chelsea Pajak, 13, of Eighty-Four, and Jay Hreiz, 14, of Quakertown, are the new Rabbit D[redacted]ess and Duke, while Christine Cascioli, 14, of Egg Harbor, N.J. and Christopher Don, 14, of Forked River, N.J. are the new Cavy Duchess and Duke. They competed with 12- to 14-year-olds who completed an application, took an examination, identified breeds and varieties of rabbits or cavies, did showmanship, and participated in an interview.

Alia Pajak, 10, of Eighty-Four, is the new Rabbit Princess, while Robin Cascioli, 10, of Egg Harbor, N.J., is the new Cavy Princess. Alia and Robin completed an application, took an examination, identified rabbits or cavies, did showmanship, and participate[redacted] an interview.

In the youth educational exhibit contest, Senior Champion honors went to the hand-sewn quilt with a rabbit design crafted by Denise Ancharski, 17, of Levittown. Rijelle Kraft, 14, of Manchester, exhibited the first place educational poster and single rabbit photograph. First place in the rabbit drawing and poetry classes went to Karen Keyser, 15, of York, and Germantown, MD, while first place in the cavy creative writing contest was won by Christopher Don, 14, of Forked River, N.J.

Our church recently had a "garage sale." Only this sale was a big, big affair held in the Fellowship Hall. It was held to benefit a Habitat House that is being built in Lancaster. They made almost $4,000.

My contribution was a morning spent potting plants to sell. After I put them in the trunk of the car, I counted 17 pots. These were not all flowers but also included yellow raspberries, cluck onions, and various kinds of teas.

Not only were there dishes, toys, tools, and jewelry but also typewriters, televisions, furniture and bicycles to sell. Many families felt that they got real bargains as they paid $5 for a Schwinn bicycle.

On the same day, I also attended a public sale in a nearby development. The widow moved to a retirement community and had to sell her home and most of her possessions. This family had many hobbies and collected various objects. Several pieces of antique furniture were sold too. Even the colorful room-sized braided rugs that she and her husband made were sold. A relative managed to buy the 1974 Volkswagen that she drove on her errands.

My mother had to part with some of her belongings when they moved to another house. My great uncle and aunt were in a nursing home and did not see all of their things being sold. And, my cousins had to move quite suddenly to a nursing facility and therefore did not know that their things were sold. It is hard to part with long-held belongings.

Share Your Home, Make A Friend For Life

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — ASSE International Student Exchange Programs is seeking host families for boys and girls from Sweden, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, Switzerland, Great Britain, Finland, Holland, Spain, Poland, Portugal, Czech Republic, Slovakia, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, Thailand, Brazil and the former Soviet Union.

Qualified students are well-screened, 15 to 18 years of age and arrive from their home country shortly before school begins and return at the end of the school year. Each ASSE student is fully insured, brings his or her own personal spending money and expects to bear his or her share of household responsibilities.

In addition to the satisfaction that comes from sharing the American lifestyle with an exchange student, an ASSE host family has an advantage by having a student live in their home who wishes to share their culture and customs. Therefore ASSE host families are exposed to a greater world perspective which provides a new appreciation for our country and community.

Host families may select their exchange student from ASSE's student applications which include biographical essays, family photos, school transcripts and health records.

To receive more information about this unique cultural opportunity, contact ASSE's local Area Representative: Lynne Tryon at (717) 738-4690 or 1-800-677-ASSE (2773).

Fixing Things On The Farm Prepares Teen For State Competition

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

FLEETWOOD (Berks Co.) — Some dreams start early. Ever since Joshua Kurtz was a little boy helping his dad fix tractors, his dream has been "to farm and fix motorcycles on the side."

Now 17-years-old, Joshua's dream has been unfolding according to plan.

He has had plenty experience at both farming and fixing motorcycles. Growing up on his parents', Floyd's and Beth's, dairy farm in Fleetwood, Joshua enthusiasm for farming prevails. On the side, he fixes lawn mowers and motorcycles that neighbors and friends bring for repair.

The experience paid off. Recently Joshua was named the best in motorcycle mechanics in the state when he competed with other students.

As a junior at the Berks Career and Technology Center, he attended state competition at the Pennsylvania College of Technology in Williamsport for three days with 1,800 students from across the state.

Joshua and the other students qualified by competing through vocational schools on the district level through the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA).

The purpose of VICA is to learn leadership and citzenship skills through participation in educational, vocational, civic, recreational, and social activities.

To win the state competition, Joshua and contestants from other schools needed to spend 20 minutes each at nine stations throughout the competition. Under the judges' observation, contestants were required to change gaskets, test switches, and so forth.

Because each contestant worked individually, Joshua had no idea he was a winner until the last day of the competition.

"I was a bit nervous," Joshua said.

He need not have been. Last year, Joshua had competed in the same event when he was only a sophomore and placed second while competing against all seniors and adults. This year, he was tops.

For the awards ceremony, Joshua's parents and sisters attended and provided a rousing cheering section.

Students are allowed to compete in only one division. Joshua would have enjoyed working on either air cooled engines or marine engines also but his teacher advised him to go for the motorcycle competition.

For winning the state competition, Joshua received a $2,500 scholarship, a watch, duffel bay, and numerous repair manuals from the Harley Davidson Company.

The state win qualifies Joshua to compete at the national contest to be held in Kansas City, Mo. during the last week in June.

Next year, Joshua will switch schools to Lancaster Mennonite High (LMH) in Lancaster for his senior year. He hopes to find a co-op job and is looking forward to taking agricultural classes at LMH.

The Kurtzes farm 300 acres and milk 70 cows in Fleetwood.

"Joshua gets up at 5:30 every morning without complaining to feed the cows and help milk," his mother said. "He's really reliable and we're proud of him."

The DHIA-tested herd produces 21,000 pounds of milk with 500 pounds of butterfat.

"We don't push for top production because top production doesn't make top money," Floyd said. "We go for average."

But in the fields, it's a different story. There the Kurtzes push for top yields.

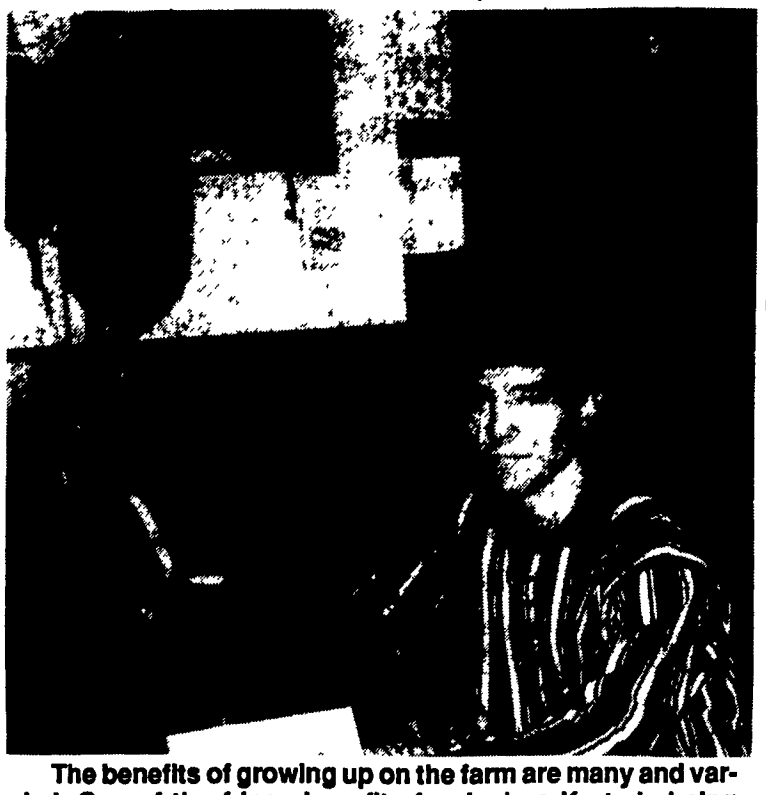
Joshua and his dad enter corn, straw, and hay competitions at the Kutztown Fair, where they usually "do pretty good," which translated means numerous top awards for yields.

The Kurtzes were pushing to plant soybeans on the day of the interview. "We have more work than labor," Floyd said.

He relies heavily on soil tests for

(Turn to Page B5)

The Kurtz family includes parents Floyd and Beth, Joshua, 17; Abby, 15; Rebecca, 9; and Katie, 6. Floyd and Joshua farm 300 acres, milk cows, and repair equipment for themselves and neighbors. Beth takes care of household duties, running the children to activities, decorating the house in country, and planting flowers in old wooden boxes. Abby helps her mother around the house and does the farm bookkeeping on the computer. Abby hopes to become a hair dresser and in the meantime, enjoys experimenting with hair styles on her sisters. Rebecca has won numerous awards on the swim team. Katie also takes swimming lessons and want to be like her sisters.



The benefits of growing up on the farm are many and varied. One of the fringe benefits for Joshua Kurtz is being named best in the state for motorcycle competition — not driving, but fixing them. For winning the state competition, Joshua received a $2,500 scholarship, a watch, duffel bay, and numerous repair manuals from the Harley Davidson Company.

Joshua and his dad, Floyd, restored this Pontiac GTO by replacing the interior and rebuilding and repainting the motor parts. When Joshua came home after winning state VICA competition, his sister had made a sign which appears in the shop windows in the background. It reads, "Congratulations, Joshua. We are very proud of you."

fertilizer needs. Manure from their own farm is used on the 300 acres and purchased fertilizer has been reduced since they first purchased the farm in 1979.

They've added 20 more stalls, a silo, and built an equipment shed since they purchased the farm.

"I'd like to have more land, but we can't get it," Floyd said.

Although Joshua's high mechanical scores are certain to attract job offers, he said, "I'd rather farm. I've always seen myself as a farmer."

He enjoys competing in four-wheeler pulls, where participants soup up four-wheelers to pull scaled-down skid loads. Joshua is a member of the Berks County Pullers Association.

He also races golf carts on a nearby trac. Speeds are about 60 miles per hour. His sister Abby helps him prepare for the races.

Joshua and his dad restored a Pontiac GTO, by replacing the interior and the motor. Although Joshua drives the GTO when participating in cruise tours, his usual mode of transportation is a 1972 Nova SuperSport.

Joshua believes the benefits of growing up on the farm are many and varied. For him, it has prepared him to exactly as he dreamed as a young boy.

This miniature horse has been bred to add to the pets the family enjoys on the farm. Because family and friends are important to the Kurtz family, they often invite the church youth group and other friends to enjoy the swimming pool, the two large trampolines, other play equipment, and, of course, the farm.

Root For Tapioca

The name tapioca is that used by Brazilian Indians. A nutritious died for invalids; it is baked into bread by the natives of Central America.

Tapioca was first domesticated in Central or South America, having been cultivated there for several thousand years by the American Indians. It is not known to occur wild. The cassava root was taken to West Africa by the Portuguese in the sixteenth centry and then spread to the rest of the world. It is only during this century, that it has achieved its great importance as a food crop.

Its easy propagation and storage in the ground makes it an important famine relief crop. Young starchy roots are peeled and steamed or made into kueh and cakes prepeared from pounded paste. Flour or meal made from the root is used in making bread and other dishes. Starch is also manufactured for paper, laundry, and other industrial products. The young leaves may also be consumed as a green vegetable this is sold only in kampong markets.

Low Fat Diet Safe For Kids

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Children 4 to 10 years old who cut the amount of fat in their meals and snacks to lower their cholesterol are as well nourished as those on unmodified diets, a Penn State-led team has shown.

Dr. Jennie McKenzie, lead author on the team's recent report in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association, says, "Our results indicate that you can safely feed a 4- to 10-year-old child a diet in which only 30 percent of the calories come from fat as long as you follow the guidelines on the Food Pyramid."

"Parents can be reassured that, if they follow the Dietary Guidelines for Americans as illustrated by the Food Pyramid, they will not be compromising their child's growth or other nutritional factors to deal with cardiovascular risk through a fat-modified diet," she added.

Most of the children in the study had moderately elevated levels of low-density-lipoprotein (LDL), sometimes called "bad" cholesterol, in their blood. Health professionals often recommend low-fat diets for such children to lower their risk of heart disease when they get older by decreasing their blood lipid levels.

The 303 children, all of whom came from families in the suburbs north of Philadelphia, were divided into four groups. One group received face-to-face counseling once from a registered dietitian and took home print materials for themselves and their parents. Another group received a home-based education porgram that involved parent and child in 10 weekly "talking book" lessons, follow up paper-and-pencil activities, and a manual for parents. The remaining two groups were controls, one group with elevated blood lipids and one without. The controls received no educational program, counseling or printed materials.

Both groups of children who received intervention, either from a dietitian or the home-based education program, reduced their LDL blood levels after three months. However, the group that received home-based education reduced their blood lipid levels faster and showed a greater decline in "bad" cholesterol.

The children in the two intervention groups achieved their lower blood lipid levels by consuming fewer servings of high fat meats, dairy products, fats/oils and desserts and more servings of lower fat foods.

McKenzie says, "It's significant to note that the children did not stop eating meats, dairy products, fats/oils and desserts but rather modified their choices within those food groups by choosing fewer servings or lower fat alternatives."

As a result, despite the lower number of servings from some food groups, the children on modified diets had, on average, adequate intakes of all nutrients, defined as greater than 67 percent of the Recommended Daily Allowance, the same as the kids on the unmodified diets.

McKenzie adds, "It's possible that some well-meaning parent could become overly restrictive toward their child's diet and compromise the child's nutritional status. But, if the adult follows the Food Pyramid guidelines and the child also receives some counseling or education, it's safe to feed a 4- to 10-year-old child a diet in which 30 percent of the calories come from fat."

Copies of the parent and child 10-lesson home-based education program used in the study are available in limited quantities for $45, from the Penn State Nutrition Center, 5 Henderson Building, University Park, PA 16801.

Packing for Picnics

Those lazy, hazy, crazy days of summer are almost here. Warm weather provides ideal temperatures for bacteria to grow to dangerous levels and cause foodborne illness. Following some basic guidelines for food selection, preparation, handling and storage can help insure a fun filled outing with no side effects.

Bacteria grow rapidly when food is between 40° and 140°F — the Danger Zone. In the span of a few hours billions of bacteria can be produced with the potential for disaster. The time in the danger zone is accumulative. To keep foods safe, keep hot foods hot, and cold foods cold. Practice the two-hour rule; do not allow foods in the danger zone for more than two hours total (1 hour if the temperature is above 90°F) from purchase to consumption.

As you are shopping for picnic items, buy perishables last and go straight home. Never leave perishables in the car while you do other shopping. Chill all ingredients before assembling salads, sandwiches, and other potentially hazardous foods. Chill again before packing the cooler. Some foods that need to be kept cold are meat and poultry sandwiches and salads, tuna and egg salads, milk, cheese, yogurt, opened cans of fruit or pudding, and peeled or cut fruits and vegetables.

Foods that are safe at room temperature include peanut butter sandwiches, cookies, crackers, dried fruit, unopened cans of fruit or pudding, unopened juice boxes and fruit filled pastries.

Keep foods safe in transit by packing them in insulated bags, lunch boxes or coolers with frozen gel packs. Frozen juice boxes can also act as a cold source. Do not try to freeze cans or bottles of soda. Make sure food is cold or frozen before placing it in the cooler. Sandwiches can be frozen the night before and will be thawed by lunch time; this works best with course breads. Hold the lettuce, tomato and mayo, add these later. Use cold packs throughout large containers, not just on the top or bottom, so cold is evenly distributed. Remember, cold falls so place more cold sources toward the top than bottom. Pack the cooler carefully with raw products well wrapped, placed on the bottom so raw foods will not drip on cooked.

Transport the cooler in the passenger compartment of the car. At the picnic area place it in the shade or in a shelter out of the sun and keep the lid closed. If you are brown bagging, use new, clean bags; used grocery bags are a potential source of bacteria and insects. Wash the cooler or lunch box after each use to keep bacteria from growing. A little baking soda in the water will eliminate odors.

Everything that touches the food needs to be clean — bowls, utensils, cutting boards, etc. Stop and wash your hands before and after preparing or handling food to keep bacteria from being transferred to food. Take along wet wipes and antibacterial gel to clean hands if no hand washing facilities are available.

When you are packing, take only what you think you will use. If you do have leftovers, put them back in the cooler as soon as possible. If you are away for 4-5 hours and the perishables are on ice, they will probably be safe to keep. Throw out small amounts of leftovers.

If you are grilling foods, take care not to cross contaminate by handling raw meat and then cooked foods without washing hands and utensils in between. Cook burgers until completely brown in the middle with clear juices and a flaky texture. Serve immediately or keep hot (140°F) until serving. Do not reuse the same plate and utensils for raw and cooked food.

Whatever the season, some individuals are more at risk to get foodborne illness than others. Small children, elderly, pregnant women, and immune compromised individuals are all at higher risk. There is more chance of foodborne illness occurring in the summer because of the warmer temperatures. Remember to keep hot foods hot, cold foods cold, wash hands, avoid cross contamination, and thoroughly cook foods. Don't spoil a summer outing by leaving food in the danger zone too long.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted soybean recipes, here are several plus some information from the United Soybean Board. For more recipes, call 1-800-TALK-SOY.

Soybean Facts

Buying: Whole soybeans are available in natural food stores and supermarkets in bags or bulk bins.

Storing: Soybeans may be kept in air-tight container for a long period of time.

Preparing: Dry soybeans expand greatly when cooked. One cup of dried beans becomes 2 to 3 cups cooked beans. Discard debris and shriveled beans. Wash and drain.

Soaking: Soaking dry soybeans shortens the cooking time and improves the flavor, texture, and appearance of the beans.

Standard Soaking: In a large pot, add 6 cups water for each one pound dry beans. Let the soybeans stand at room temperature for about six to eight hours or overnight. It is unnecessary to refrigerate the beans during this process. Drain, rinse, and cook the beans.

Quick Soaking: Add six to eight cups hot water for each pound dry beans. Heat the water to boiling and cook the soybeans for five minutes. Cover the pot and let the beans stand for one hour. Drain, rinse, and cook the beans.

Cooking: Put the soaked beans into a large pot. Add 6 cups fresh water for each pound beans. Don't add salt at this point or it will delay the softening of the beans. Bring the pot to a boil, allowing the steam to escape. Reduce the heat to simmer and cook the beans for about three hours until tender.

Seasoning: Cook with onion, garlic or bay leaf.

Spicy Roasted Soybeans

Soak three cups whole dry soybeans using either the standard or quick soaking method listed under Soybean Facts. Spread evenly over a lightly-oiled cookie sheet. Sprinkle with salt, garlic, and chili powder. Bake in 300-degree oven, shaking the pan every 15 minutes for about one hour or until the soybeans are lightly browned.

Savory Baked Beans

2 pounds whole dry soybeans
Water
¾ cup dark molasses
½ cup packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon tamari or soy sauce
¼ teaspoon cayenne
1 teaspoon pepper
1 large onion, chopped
½ cup green pepper, chopped
3 garlic cloves, minced
2 bay leaves
⅛ teaspoon cloves

Soak beans in water using either the standard or quick soaking method.

Add remaining ingredients and bake in 300 degree oven for seven to eight hours. Check periodically and add more water, if necessary, to prevent beans from drying out.

MAMMA Unveils 'That Milk Thing'

TOWSON, Md. — The Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) has launched a fun and informative site on the world wide web named after the lovable mascot of local dairy farmers, "That Milk Thing."

Shortly after typing www.that milkthing.com, the user sees the big, blue, furry character waving back at them. At the same time, thanks to animation, words on the screen move in three dimensional style, and seem to explode off the page. From there, the user can play, and at the same time, learn about the nutritional benefits of dairy products. The activities include crossword puzzles, word finds, and a coloring contest. Children are also able to print out a daily food guide pyramid that highlights the five food groups. Soon to be added to the site will be photos and stories from the dairy princess of Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

Though geared heavily toward children, adults will find plenty of information by visiting www.thatmilkthing.com. There are delicious dairy drink recipes, storage tips to make sure milk is fresh, plus an extensive glossary of dairy industry terms. In the weeks to come, a test will be added to the glossary. Teachers will be able to use the glossary as a student study guide, then print out the test right from their computer.

MAMMA Marketing Director Bill Snitcher says, "We are extremely excited about the prospects of www.thatmilkthing.com. Now, in addition to TV commercials, and live appearances, the computer has given us the ability to present our mascot and messages to consumers not only in our area, but all around the world."

MAMMA is a farmer funded dairy promotional organization headquartered in suburban Baltimore, MD. MAMMA wors on behalf of over 5,000 dairy farm families in the mid-Atlantic region. The organization serves as the local affiliate of Dairy Management Inc. (American Dairy Association) of Rosemont, Illinois.

Free Farm Safety Day Camp

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Farm-related accidents are a significant, preventable cause of childhood injury in the United States every year. Lancaster County farm children are among those at risk. For that reason, the Lancaster SAFE KIDS/Farm Safety 4 Just Kids Coalition is holding its Third Annual Farm Safety Day at Quarryville Fair Ground in Quarryville, Pennsylvania on Saturday, June 14, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Numerous safety demonstrations and games show children and their families how to avoid geting hurt on the farm.

Included during the day are a free breakfast, lunch and snack, as well as door prizes.

Registration is free: Farm children and their parents should call (717) 656-2791 to receive registration information.

Revitalize Your Lawn

With more user-friendly products on the market, lawn fertilization has never been easier — provided you follow a few basic steps. "Dollar for dollar, fertilization does more to revitalize thin, weedy lawns than any other single management practice," says Dr. Peter Landschott, associate professor of turfgrass science, Penn State University.

The first step is to take a soil test. This gives you the amount of fertilizer and lime needed on the lawn. Soil test kits are available for $6 at a Penn State Cooperative Extension office. Soil tests can be taken and sent to Penn State any time of the year. Make sure you allow 2-3 weeks to receive your report.

Next, buy fertilizer. Buy fertilizer on the basis of its quality, not the size of the bag or the price. The value depends on the amount of source of nitrogen in the bag. Fertilizer labels have three numbers that designate the percentages of nitrogen, phosphate and potash in the bag. A 30-3-10 analysis, for example, means that the product contains 30 percent nitrogen, 3 percent phosphate, and 10 percent potash.

Lawns usually require annual applications of all three of these nutrients, with some lawns needing higher amounts than others. Your soil test report will provide information on which fertilizer is best for your lawn.

It's a good idea to have some slow-release nitrogen fertilizer in the bag. Lawn-care fertilizers contain 'slow-release nitrogen' or 'water insoluble nitrogen.' This provides longer lasting green-up of the lawn and reduces the chance of fertilizer burn. However, if all or most of the product is slow-release nitrogen, green-up of the lawn can be very slow. It may take weeks or even months to occur.

After purchasing the fertilizer, apply it on the lawn by using one of two types of spreaders — the rotary or drop type. Rotary spreaders do the job faster than drop spreaders since they are equipped with a rotating apparatus that throws the fertilizer out in a wide swath. Thus, fewer passes are required to cover the lawn. Drop spreaders are typically more accurate, but since they don't throw the fertilizer, the swath is narrower, and more passes are needed to cover the lawn.

Rotary spreaders are more practical for larger lawns, while drop spreaders are only suitable for small to medium-sized lawns. Many lawn fertilizers now contain spreader settings on the label. The setting, usually a number of letter, controls the amount of fertilizer applied. Look for a fertilizer that lists your spreader type (rotary vs. drop type) and model on the bag, then adjust the setting accordingly.

When it comes to fertilizer, more is not necessarily better. Never exceed the setting listed on the label. Doing so can result in excess growth, which requires more frequent mowing and weakens the turf, making it more susceptible to heat and drought in summer. Too much fertilizer can also dehydrate the grass, resulting in 'fertilizer burn' or dead turf.

To avoid creating dark and light green stipes in the lawn, ensure each pass with the spreader is adequately spaced. With rotary spreaders, space each pass so that a small amount of fertilizer overlaps with fertilizer applied from the previous pass. With a drop spreader, each pass should begin right up against the strip of the previous pass — like laying strips of wallpaper.

The best method of applying fertilizer is to use the half-rate setting suggested on the fertilizer bag and go over the lawn twice in the crisscross or grid pattern. This will further reduce the chances of striping. Remember, fertilizer does not move once it is on the lawn — wherever it lands, your lawn will turn green, and where it does not land, it will not turn green.

Applying fertilizer two or three times per year. Homeowners should fertilize lawns in mid-spring, late summer (around Labor Day), and late fall (around Thanksgiving). If you use late fall applications, you may be able to delay spring applications until late May.

Finally, never apply fertilizer during hot, dry weather in mid-summer. This can damage turf and make it more susceptible to summer diseases. Also, never make applications on frozen ground or on paved surfaces. Fertilizer on hard surfaces can be washed into storm sewers and end up in the groundwater. If it lands on the driveway, simply sweep it into the lawn.

WORK WATCH
Still Running Strong
In past years we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. A watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned.
Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. The BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.
A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty. If your watch stops running within TWO YEARS of the date of purchase the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge.
To receive your new work watch, complete the coupon below and send it with your payment. Your work watch will arrive shortly.

New York farmers Julie and George Holmes with Daniela Deva, an Albania team member who will continue the work begun by the Fellowship of Christian Farmers International.

Fellowship Of Christian Farmers Visit Albania

TRUMANSBURG, N.Y. — After a two-month mission trip to Albania with the Fellowship of Christian Farmers, Int., George and Julie Holmes returned home.

This was the Holmes fourth year of participating in mission work in the small Balkin country riddled with problems this year. The Albanians are upset with the government and the loss of hard-earned money in the pyramid scams.

After experiencing Marshall Law, riots and demonstrations, media and electrical blackouts and long bread lines, the Holmes left on the last Alitalia flight out of Albania.

"God gave us a window of time and safety to get out before the airport closed later that afternoon," Holmes said.

When they heard gun fire all night a week before leaving, Holmes said that God's protection and the promises of Psalms 91 became very real to them.

Problems in the southern part of Albania did not effect the work the three groups of farmers on the mission trip. The groups were able to visit flatland and mountain villages, pass out Bibles, Christian literature, and vegetable seed packets.

A team of young Christian Albanians are continuing the work in six villages by teaching scripture lessons. A van had been purchased through Planters Seed Foundation to transport the team and extra helpers. Enough money was donated to keep the team going out to the villages twice a month until December.

"Short term missions trips are worth the effort. One personally grows in the Lord," Holmes said.

A slide presentation and display of Albania are available by calling (607) 387-6538 evenings.

Backyard Ponds Need Care

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Installing a small water garden or pond has been a home landscaping trend for the past several years, but an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences says homeowners should be aware that maintaining an aquatic environment means more than filling a tub and tossing in some fish.

"The root of all evil in a garden pond is excess algae, and the key to controlling algae is controlling nutrients," says Thomas Martin, assistant professor of aquatic ecology in the School of Forest Resources. "The most common nutrients are nitrogen compounds and phosphorus, which are the main ingredients in lawn fertilizer."

Martin says ornamental ponds should be installed so that lawn runoff will not drain into the pond. He also recommends using plastic pond liners so nutrients will not soak into the pond from surrounding soil. "Some homeowners plant a buffer strip of plants around the pond to soak up those nutrients," Martin says.

Martin points out that algae must have light, warm water temperatures, and adequate nutrients to grow, climatic conditions that are met from about April to October in the Northeast. These factors also are harder to control as the surface area of water is reduced.

"It's a problem of scale in that the smaller the pond, the more you have to treat it like an aquarium," he says. "Homeowners should also be aware that adding any plant or animal to a pond requires some sort of management."

For example, introducing fish into a pond can cause an increase in algae. All fish produce ammonia as a waste product, Martin explains. In a lake or a river, that ammonia is diluted, but in a small pond, levels can quickly build up and kill all the fish. Luckily, all ponds contain bacteria that can break down ammonia, but the compounds ammonia breaks down into are nitrates — or more fertilizer to promote algae growth.

One way to counteract algae is to introduce rooted plants, which can absorb nutrients that would otherwise feed algae. The plants also shade the surface of the water, which prevents algae growth. "To really control algae, you'll have to shade 70 to 80 percent of the water surface," Martin says, "Which means if you have any fish in the pond, you won't be able to see much of them."

Martin says homeowners who want a very low maintenance pond can use floating leaf plants and a water dye that turns the surface black, preventing light and temperature from encouraging algae growth.

For most pond owners, Martin recommends installing a filter system that is adequate for the size of the pond and adding water plants to absorb nutrients. "You should add a couple of fish to prevent any insect problems," Martin adds. "You'll never see mosquitoes where there are fish — they don't co-exist."

Martin also recommends cleaning out the pond liner at least once a summer to eliminate waste and other material that builds up on the bottom.

Professionals alsy say pond owners should change the water about 10 percent per week, although Martin says it might be easier to change 40 percent of the water every month. "If you are on a municipal water system, the water will be chlorinated," Martin warns. "Chlorine will kill the bacteria that breaks down ammonia and other compounds. You can either add chemicals to eliminate the chlorine or aerate the water to dissipate the chlorine before adding it."

If a pond has an outbreak of algae, Martin says homeowners should remove as much of the algae as possible, check to see if the filter is clogged, and then seek help at the local garden center. "If you leave algae in a pond system, it uses more oxygen than it produces. When algae is competing for oxygen with other plants and fish, the fish usually die. A fountin can help this by adding oxygen to the water."

Martin also advises against adding wildlife such as snails or fish that feed by filtering food along the bottom. "Whatever algae the snails eat probably is offset by the amount of waste they produce," Martin says. "Filter-feeding fish are extremely difficult to sustain in a man-made environment."

Martin says if an average homeowner changes 20 to 40 percent of the water every two to four weeks and filters the pond, few problems should develop. As winter approaches, Martin says the smaller ponds should be drained, cleaned and left empty over the winter.

"Although it seems like a lot of work, maintaining a pond is pretty easy," Martin says. "After all, most people who install them don't do it just to look at the fish and plants. They also want to have a hobby they can tinker with."

Hugs And Kisses Dominate Farm Women's Rally

LOU ANN GOOD

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — More than 780 members of the Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women gathered for the day-long Spring Rally held Tuesday.

The theme, "Happiness Is Hugs and Kisses," held a dual meaning since the rally was held at the Hershey Convention Center, home for the Hershey Kiss and Hershey Hug candies. Plenty of the famous chocolates were available for indulging while distant friends greeted each other with hugs and kisses.

Dauphin County members hosted this year's event. The program included an introduction by J. Bruce McKinney, chief executive officer of HERCO, who talked about Milton Hershey and how he built the town of Hershey from profits of his candy empire.

Hershey was born into a Mennonite home in Derry Church now called Hershey. After several attempts at business, Hershey launched his first successful business in Lancaster where he founded the Caramel Company.

In 1900, Hershey sold the Caramel Company for $1 million. He returned to his hometown to experiment with chocolate making. At that time chocolate was considered a luxury item. Hershey found a way to mass produce it and sell a candy bar for a nickle. Today the Hershey Foods Corporation is one of the largest manufacturers in the world with $3 billion in annual sales.

With his profits, Hershey established a park in 1907, which has been expanded and is now known as Hersheypark. The chocolate company was so successful that even during the 1930's Depression, Hershey was considered a "boom town."

Because the Hersheys had no children of their own, they opened a home for four boys in 1909. From the Hershey $4.1 billion endownment, the richest in the U.S., the school now has 1,100 students who live year-round on the 10,000-acre campus.

McKinney, whose father died when he was young, was a student at the school and considers it Hershey's finest endeavor.

Bag Lady Rita McGinty entertained the audience with antics typical of a homeless bag lady. McGinty has performed at more than 200 programs to fulfill a promise she made when her family was almost evicted from their home due to "a series of tragedies." All the proceeds given to her for performances are given to interfaith shelters.

McGinty said that 40 percent of the homeless are children. She told of meeting one boy who was on crutches after his toes were frostbitten from sleeping in an abandoned car for shelter.

Accompanying McGinty was her family disguised as street people. Excerpts of the homeless were interspersed with McGinty's family singing songs such as "What A Friend We Have In Jesus."

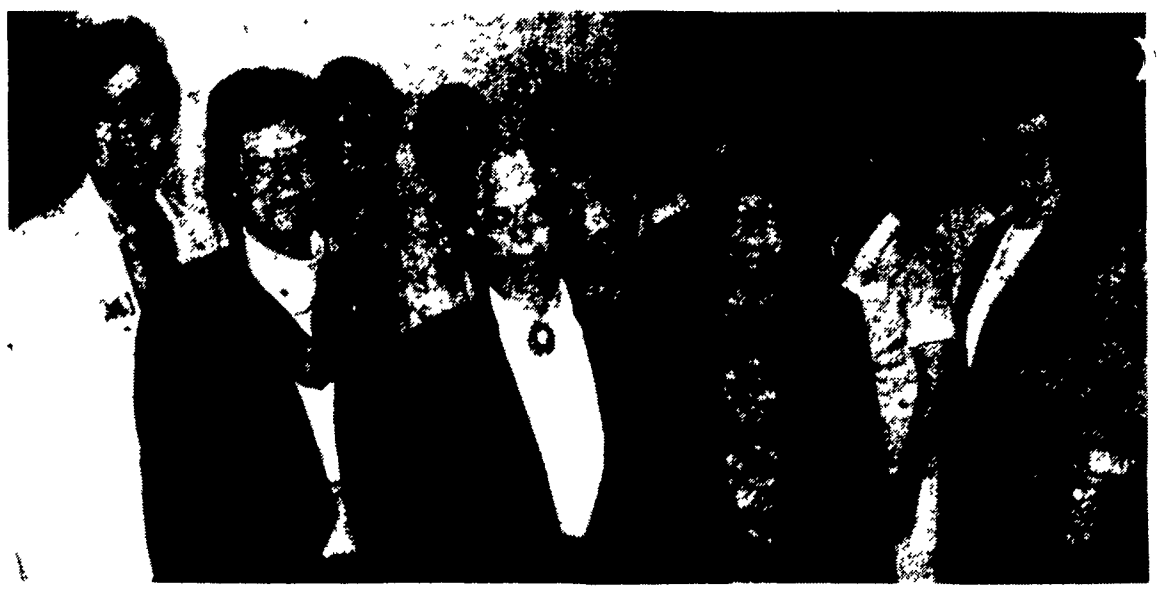
The message of that and other songs sung from the perspective of the homeless took on new meaning for the audience, many of whom were teary-eyed.

In the afternoon program, the Hershey High School Chorus entertained with a collection of songs reflective of different regions.

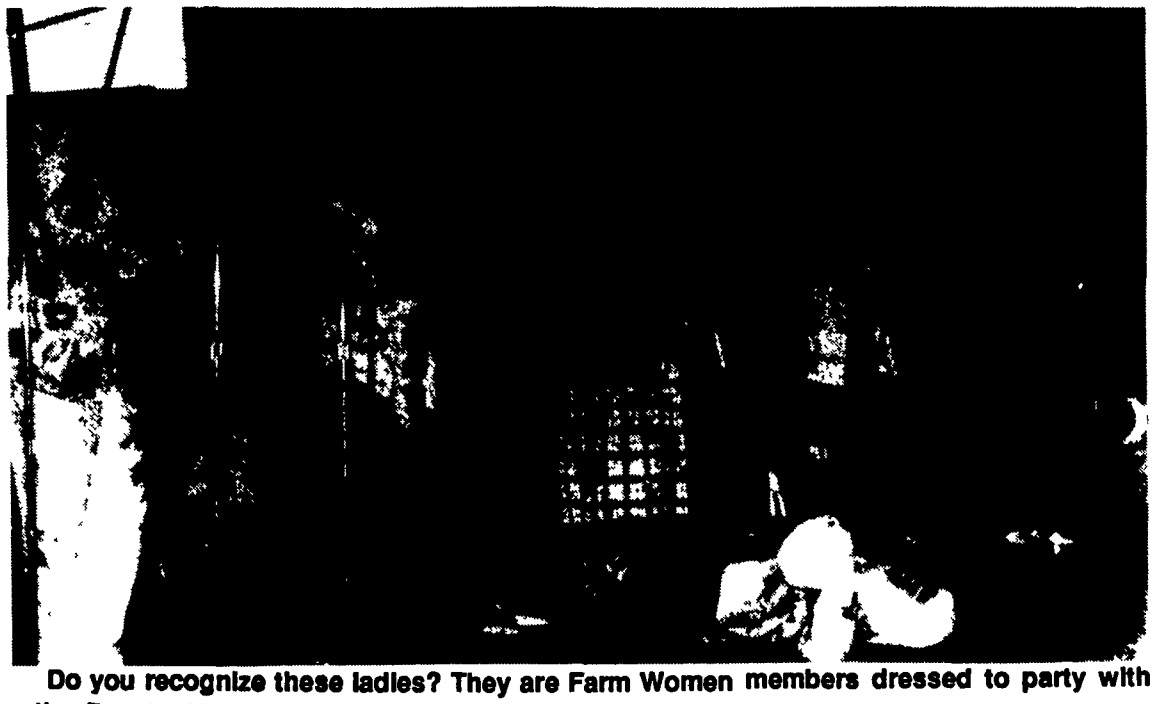
Each year a different county hosts the Spring Rally of the Society of Farm Women of Pennsylvania. Due to better weather, the rally usually draws more members than the annual state convention held in Harrisburg during the state Farm Show.

The Farm Women Society was founded by Mrs. Frank Black of Somerset County in 1914. The purpose is to contribute to the power and influence of the farm home; to contribute to to the community activity of farm women; to develop leadership, and to promote better living and working conditions in farm homes. Current membership is about 2,750.

With wit and poise Bag Lady Rita McGinty helps audiences understand the plight of the homeless. "Circumstances enter into life. One day you're something and another you're something else," she said.



Officers from the 12 Dauphin County Societies of Farm Women planned the day-long rally held at the Hershey Convention Center. From left front: Lois Lesher, Group 11; Harriet Newtin, Group 4; Jane Fox, Group 2; Ruth Miller, Group 5; Naomi Donofrid, Group 8; and Martha Reed, corresponding secretary. Back row from left: Evelyn Keim, recording secretary; Shirley Radel, Group 10; Shirley Eckard, Group 9; Becky Elsneblse, Group 16; Sharon Strite, Group 9; Betty Etzweiler, Group 15; and Della Parmer, Group 1.



Do you recognize these ladies? They are Farm Women members dressed to party with the Bag Lady.

Remove Smoke, Mildew Odors

READING (Berks Co.) — Odors from smoke or mildew are usually difficult to remove. This is because these odors can often become trapped in textiles, making them impossible to remove by normal cleaning techniques. Most of these odors, however, can be removed by your drycleaner through the use of ozone generators.

Oxygen commonly exists in nature as the stable form O_2, but it also exists in a reactive form called ozone, O_3. The important difference between ozone and oxygen is the additional energy ozone possesses, making it more chemically reactive than oxygen. Ozone is formed through a process called oxidation, causes the material with which oxygen is combined to change its molecular configuration by losing one or more of its electrons.

Ozone generators work by passing dry air through a high frequency electrical field. This electrical discharge splits an oxygen molecule into two free atoms, which then combine with an oxygen molecule that has not been split to form ozone. The contact between ozone and the odors embeded in the textiles causes oxidation to reoccur, resulting in elimination [illegible] the odors and release of oxy[illegible].

Some drycleaners charge as much as 60 percent of the normal invoice price for this service. However, if the garment is valuable or if you have experienced a disaster such as a fire or flood, you may find it well worth the money.

Broom Making Demonstration

Moisture Solutions Cause Stains

READING (Berks Co.) — Moisture solutions can cause the appearance of mysterious, dark or brownish, splatter-type spots on garments during storage.

These spots usually have a small, splattered-like appearance and are usually more evident on the top portion of garments, such as the collar, shoulders, or sleeves. These stains may appear in various dark colors depending on the staining substance, the fabric composition, and the age of the original fabric contact.

The stains are usually caused by contact with hair preparations, hair sprays, perfumes, and/or other moisture solutions that may contain impurities such as rain. Even though many moisture solutions will evaporate out the water and leave no visible stains, time, exposures to atmospheric conditions, and/or the heat of drying may cause the remaining residue to oxidize and become visible.

In some fabrics, these stains are very difficult or impossible to remove. When the stains do not respond to normal dryside and wetside spotting agents, careful bleaching on whites and other fabrics that are safe to bleach may lighten the stains enough to return the garment to a wearable state.'

However, careful laundering may remove staining residues or if the stains are fresh and visible prior to cleaning, the drycleaner can attempt to remove the stains.

The best solution is a defensive one. Wear a big shirt or bathrobe over your clothes before spraying your hair. Allow perfume to dry on the skin before fabrics can absorb it.

ANSWER — About 50 people sent in answers for the request for the words to "Mother" by Miriam Druist of Shirleysburg. Thanks to all. Sorry there is not room to mention all the names. Most sent in the words to the chorus, but Dorothy Waibel, Lykens, sent in verses and two choruses.

M-O-T-H-E-R

Verse 1:

I've been around the world, you bet,
But never went to school;
Hard knocks, one all I seem to get,
Perhaps I've been a fool;
But still some educated folks,
Supposed to be so swell,
Would fail if they wre called upon
A simple word to spell
Now if you'd like to put me to the test
There's one dear name that I can spell.

Chorus:

M is for the million things she gave me,
O means only that she's growing old,
T is for the tears she shed to save me,
H is for her heart as pure as gold.
E is for her eyes, with lovelight shining
R means right, and right she always be;
Put them all together, they spell "Mother"
A word that means the world to me.

Verse 2:

When I was but a baby,
Long before I learned to walk.
While lying in my cradle
I would try my best to talk;
It wasn't long before I spoke
And all the neighbors heard,
My folds were very proud of me,
For "Mother" was the word.
Although I'll never lay a claim to fame.
I'm satisfied that I can spell the name.

Chorus:

M is for the mercy she possesses,
O means that I owe her all I won.
T is for her tender, sweet caresses,
H is for her hands that made a home.
E means everything she's done to help me;
R means real and regular, you see,
Put them all together they spell "Mother,"
A word that means the world to me.

ANTIBIOTICS DAMAGE THE IMMUNE SYSTEM
Vitamix FEEDS THE IMMUNE SYSTEM
You Can Sell The Milk
When You Use Vitamix Instead Of Antibiotics

Vitamix is for every contagious disease & every kind of infection. Support the immune system their lives depend on it.

You can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix. Vitamix is a mixture of vitamins, minerals, enzymes, electrolytes, and proteins, especially calculated to feed the immune system. Vitamix is the result of over 20 years research and over 20,000 feeding experiments. Vitamix ingredients are so micro pulverized and easily digestible that some of them melt in the mouth and are absorbed into the bloodstream while the cow is still chewing her feed. Her organs increase the output of antibodies (white cells) within minutes, and can often double the output of antibodies within one hour after consuming Vitamix, and you can get Vitamix without a prescription. Vitamix is all natural. You just put Vitamix in the feed whenever there are symptoms of a contagious disease or infection.

The cow's immune system can cure any and every kind of contagious disease and infection quicker, safer, more consistently than any medical drug in the world when you support the immune system. The immune system is the only real defense. I keep cows and horses for feeding experiments.The last tlme I used an antibiotic was in 1984 and haven't lost a cow, calf or horse since I quit using antibiotics.

Any time any human or animal gets a contagious disease or any kind of infection, it is for one reason, and one reason only; The immune system failed to do an adequate job of defending against it. In other words, the immune system let you down.

Every time you use antibiotics, sulfa drug or an immune stimulator; you weaken the immune system. See the Physicians Desk Reference (PDR) for more information on the side effects of antibiotics. The information in the PDR was provided by the drug companies that make the drugs as required by law.

Shouldn't we be feeding the immune system instead? Support the immune system. Their lives and health depend on it. Feed Vitamix every time for every contagious disease or infection.
Vitamix is the best procedure in the world for Mastitis. It is quick and easy and you can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix.

How long does it take when you take the "Support the immune system approach?" I have seen calves that were down, had high fever, bloody scours and were dehydrated. One needed help to hold its head up. The only thing I gave them was Vitamix and water. In three hours, I had to run them down and get them cornered to give the Vitamix. Dairymen tell me that Vitamix is faster than anything else they ever used.

When there is a serious case of anything contagious or infectious; I give Vitamix once an hour for three hours, or until they are back on their feed and doing noticeably better. I continue Vitamix six times daily for a few days. Vitamix typically costs only $2 to $3 a day for a cow (less for a calf). The total cost for one cow for one illness is typically $8 to $10 from start to finish.

Vitamix costs less than antibiotics, and you can get it without a prescription. Vitamix is completely drug free!!! You can sell the milk when you use Vitamix!!! (When you use antibiotics, you pour the milk out for 5 days, sometimes more. You risk making a mistake and pouring all your milk out for 5 days or more.)

You save money Every Time you use Vitamix. Get some Vitamix now to keep on hand. Use Vitamix as soon as you see symptoms of anything contagious or infectious. You will know you did the right thing within hours.

Preventing and curing all contagious disease and infections boils down to this. Increasing the capacity to produce white cells (Antibodies). All white cells are made by the bone marrow. Antibiotics cause "bone marrow depression" thereby reducing its ability to make white cells to fight diseases and infection (See Physician's Desk Reference Book [PDR]).

I have done over 20,000 feeding experiments on healing the body, and have yet to find an incurable contagious disease or infection.

Why sit around waiting for a miracle? You can order Vitamix right now. Miracles are great and they do happen now and then; if you wait around one might happen for you. But the immune system is a miracle. You can order Vitamix today and keep it on hand, then you will have it when you need it.
Vitamix ...when you need a miracle. The best source of information about Vitamix is people who have used it. Ask a friend about Vitamix.

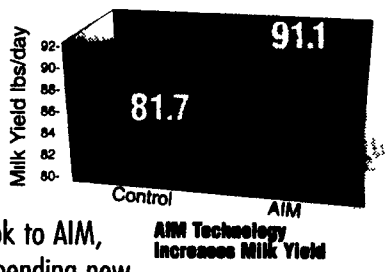
Announcing Amino Acid Impact Management (AIM), technology for better dairy herd performance

If you're constantly searching for ways to increase milk production, look to AIM, the patent-pending new feed technology from Master Mix Feeds.



AIM Technology Increases Milk Yield

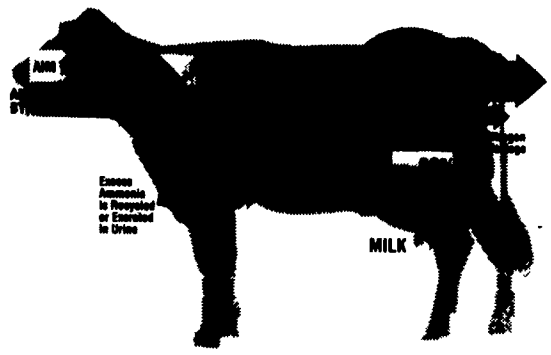
Meeting essential amino acid needs

Researchers from Master Mix Feeds have developed a patent-pending technology that significantly improves the concentrations of rumen undegradeable amino acids of highly digestible proteins. AIM enhances the flow of high quality amino acids directly to the small intestine where they are absorbed and used for milk and milk protein synthesis. AIM technology provides a balanced, and consistent source of essential amino acids that lead to increased milk yields and improved lactational performance.

Optimize protein efficiency

AIM works where other feed systems often come up short. Research has demonstrated that AIM technology optimizes the supply of both feed derived and microbial amino acids to the small intestine. This balanced supply means more efficient amino acid utilization.

Ready Aim Fire



Position your dairy operation for the future

AIM is the perfect complement to sound management practices. It provides a precise feed management system. AIM gives you a solution for improving milk and milk component yields.

Call or write today for a free AIM brochure. 1-800-292-FEED ext. 5111.

BIOSECURITY: A KEY TO POULTRY HEALTH

John H. Schwartz, Ph.D.
Lancaster County
Extension Director

The recent avian influenza cases reminds us that diseases are always present in the environment.

As we increase the number of birds on a farm, the importance of biosecurity becomes more important.

Biosecurity is a term that includes all of the measures that should be taken to prevent the spread of disease organisms, insects, and rodents. To implement a biosecurity program, you must first know how disease organisms may spread. These organisms readily survive in dust particles, manure, rodents, insects, feathers, dead birds, and eggs. They travel place to place by chicken crates, egg filler flats, trucks, equipment and people.

Disease organisms may be found on people's hands, in their hair, on clothing and on shoes. The goal of biosecurity is do not bring germs to poultry and do not bring poultry to germs.

Some measures you should insist on being followed are:

- Do not visit other poultry farms unless it is absolutely important.
- Never visit a backyard flock.
- Never attend or visit a live bird market or auction.
- Do not allow visitors inside your poultry houses, including children, friends, and relatives.
- Do not enter or allow anyone to enter your poultry house or egg room unless wearing clean and sanitized coveralls and boots. Change clothing when you leave the poultry house.
- Do not loan or borrow equipment from any other farm unless it is thoroughly cleaned and disinfected.
- Restrict movement of all vehicles entering and leaving your farm. Have vehicles park outside the premises at a cleanup area whenever possible.
- Bring onto the farm only clean and disinfected crates, egg cartoons, etc. Reject anything that is not clean.
- Always take a shower and wash hair when arriving home from a meeting with other poultry farmers (including church and eating places).
- Keep a separate pair of boots for use in each poultry house. Storing them in a rubber garbage can with a lid will help to keep them clean.
- Clean and disinfect boots before entering and leaving the poultry house.
- Change footbaths at least daily or more often if subject to a lot of dirt and manure.
- Keep all doors to your poultry houses locked at all times.
- Keep a log of all people entering your poultry houses. The log should include date, time, name of person, purpose of visit and last farm or place they visited.
- Avoid contact with wild birds and waterfowl.

Also, place new birds in a clean house. By doing a thorough job of cleaning and disinfecting, you are reducing the disease pressure on the birds. Develop and maintain an effective rodent and insect control program. Make sure vaccinations are being properly administered and done on time. Maintain excellent air quality and move as much air as possible through the poultry house.

Try to schedule major repairs when your houses are empty. Make sure your service people including electricians, pest control operators, and other repair people are practicing biosecurity.

Records show a could biosecurity system results in improved flock performance. In addition, a good biosecurity program is your only insurance program that can prevent you the headaches and costs of a disease outbreak including loss income, depopulation cost, value of dead birds, quarantine and resulting down time and extra clean up costs.

The success of any biosecurity program depends on the farmer and how strictly he enforces it. Word travels fast within the poultry community on who has a very strict biosecurity program. Experience has shown me that the poultry farmers who demand biosecurity be followed will have everyone following it. However, never make an exception. Once this is done you have weakened your biosecurity program.

The health of your birds depends on you. Do everything you can to keep the germs away from your birds and your birds away from germs.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "The quality of a person's life is in direct proportion to their commitment to excellence."

Minnesota Researchers Find Feed Premixes May Be Their Own Worst Enemy

DES MOINES, Iowa — Some livestock may not be getting the nutrition they need because the vitamins in feed premixes are broken down by other components of the mix, University of Minnesota researchers found.

"Some vitamins are very susceptible to oxidation and other forms of breakdown," said swine nutritionist Jerry Shurson. "And some of the trace minerals are high-oxidizing compounds. We're putting those ingredients together in the same product."

Shurson and graduate students Troy Salzer and Dean Koehler studied the degradation of vitamins in premixes while they were in storage for four months. Vitamin losses were highest in premixes containing inorganic trace minerals. Potency of vitamins K, A, pyridoxine, and thiamin mononitrates were most severely affected. Vitamin K potency dropped by up to 10 percent each month during the study.

Koehler, now a nutrition consultant for Agri-Nutrition Services in Shakopee, Minn., presented the results of the research to scientists at the joint Midwestern meeting of the American Society of Animal Science and the American Dairy Science Association in Des Moines.

"The vitamin potency losses are much higher than we previously thought," Shurson said. "If producers are supplying these vitamins at minimum levels and storing them for more than a month, they may see a depression in the performance of their livestock."

Vitamin premixes lost their potency only about half as fast as premixes containing both vitamins and trace minerals, the researchers found. Likewise, premixes containing metal-specific amino acid complexes, an organic class of trace minerals, along with vitamins had only a slow loss in vitamin potency.

Shurson said the minerals in those premixes may be protected by organic compounds, preventing chemical degradation of the vitamins.

"Studies indicate that the organic trace minerals provide some improvement in livestock performance, but their cost has been prohibitive for routine use or total replacement of inorganic trace minerals," he said. "But if they protect the potency of the vitamins, producers may be able to reduce their vitamin supplementation rates."

Shurson said the study reinforces the feed industry recommendation for producers to limit feed ingredient storage to a month or less. Producers can also limit vitamin degradation by purchasing vitamin and trace mineral supplements separately.

Pioneer Leads Discussion On Critical Issues At Silage Conference

JOHNSTON, Iowa — A confidential effort between academia and industry researchers brought more than 500 conference attendees the latest information regarding critical issues in the silage and forage industry.

Sponsored by the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service, the "Silage: Field to Feedbunk" Conference addressed the needs of dairy and other livestock producers in their quest to produce quality forages and silages to increase output per animal unit.

Four speakers from Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., took part in the conference held February in Hershey, Pa. Pioneer had the largest agribusiness representation on the program and was second only to home-stater Pennsylvania State University in program and participation.

Included on the program from Pioneer were Kurt Ruppel, Pioneer dairy specialist, Greenwich, N.Y.; Dr. Steve Soderlund, Pioneer beef cattle nutritionist and end-use accounts manager; Dr. Bill Seglar, Pioneer veterinarian; and Dr. Bill Mahanna, Pioneer dairy nutritionist; all from Johnston, Iowa.

Ruppel addressed the need to understand the economics of silage making. He presented information that showed a significant return over investment for covering bunker silos, treating silages with research-proven, crop-specific microbial inoculants, and properly packing bunker silos.

From personal experiences with Pioneer, Seglar reviewed case studies that implicate silage mycotoxins as the cause of problems in dairy herds. He concluded that mycotoxins should not be the catch-all diagnosis for all herd health or nutritional problems. Thorough detectice work is required to determine if the situation truly is caused by mycotoxins.

Soderlund, one of the country's leading authorities on high moisture grains, presented findings to support the value of this feedstuff in beef and dairy rations. He covered the advantages of high moisture grains and pointed out critical management issues to produce a quality product.

Mahanna presented information to take the mystery out of troubleshooting fermented feeding problems. He encouraged producers, researchers and agribusiness professionals in the audience to understand the techniques and methods available to diagnose silage problems. Besides emphasizing the need to manage the "front end" of fermented feeds, Mahanna also provided details on feeding these ingredients.

Ruppel, Seglar, Soderlund and Mahanna are part of the nutrition and industry markets group within Pioneer. This group has been challenged by the company to address and understand the role of grains and forages in livestock production.

Earthworm Casts Reflect Soil Conditions

Dawn Lyons Johnson
Agricultural Research Service, USDA

The earthworm on the sidewalk after a summer storm are more than a fisherman's dream. Lumbricus terrestris — the common night crawler — is also a valuable tool for determining the health and viability of crop-producing soils.

By studying the organic matter of earthworm fecal matter, or casts, scientists in the Agricultural Research Service (ARS) Soil and Water Management Research Unit at the University of Minnesota have discovered a simple way to determine soil health in agricultural fields.

The casts contact soil, organic matter, microbes, and carbon, all of which give clues about the condition of the field. Researchers have found that reduce tillage farming and certain crops encourage carbon deposition, an indicator of high soil quality.

Earthworms ingest and mix fresh residues from crops like corn and soybeans with soil in a moist, microbe-rich environment. They also feed on microbes growing on residues. The carbon encapsulated by earthworms is a key building block in a well-structured soil.

"Earthworms are an important link in decomposing the previous year's crop residue," said Dennis Linden, ARS soil scientist. "They are the primary consumer of organic material in the soil."

Scientists found that fields that had been tilled less had higher populations of earthworms. Another discovery: Corn residues produce a higher concentration of carbon deposits than soybean residues do.

"It appears earthworms need to consumer more material from cornfields to get the same quantity of protein and nitrogen as they do from soybean residues," Linden said. "The earthworm doesn't need as much material when it eats soybeans."

Earthworms are being studied as one way to measure carbon sequestration, which is the capture and use of carbon in the soil.

Carbon is important because it improves soil's ability to support crop growth, water infiltration rate, and other functions. Linden said earthworms can greatly affect carbon sequestration.

Harvester Chops High Volume

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Local farmers Cletus and Dale Balmer from Manheim were featured in a recent issue of the Powermanager, a newsletter published by New Holland North America, Inc.

The Balmers farm about 700 acres in Manheim. They have more than 200 Holsteins in their dairy herd and they also do a sizable amount of custom work.

The Balmers bought a New Holland 320-hp FX25 to replace their aging forage harvester.

"We got the machine this past fall," said Cletus. "We mostly used it in corn, and we used it in some hay. It did real good. We had been using a New Holland 1915. Of course, this one has more horsepower, which we like."

The Balmers have harvested close to 600 acres for corn with their FX25. Much of that was custom work.

"The people we work for sure do like the job it does. They're real pleased with the quality of the forage because it's all cut evenly. We also used it in some hay. It cut the hay uniformly at just the length we wanted.

"And," said Cletus, "the cab is very comfortable. It's roomy and the visibility is great."

The Powermanager is a newsletter published by New Holland. It features articles about farm[illegible] and their use of New Holl[illegible] equipment to improve efficiency and reduce operating costs.

People from around the globe with Internet access can also read the online version of the Powermanager on New Holland's website. (The web address is http://www.newholland.com/na.)

Farm Credit Awards Use Of Tractor

YORK SPRINGS (Adams Co.) — York Farm Credit, ACA and Messick Equipment worked together to provide free use of a New Holland tractor.

The winner was drawn during the Adams County Corn Clinic in York Springs.

Ray Reinecker won the free use for one week of a New Holland 5640. The New Holland tractor came equipped with 4-wheel drive, cab with air, and a 12x12 Synchroshuttle transmission.

Sales Reps Awarded CAI Designation

HATFIELD (Montgomery Co.) — Lon Clemmer and Charlie Moyer of the Sanford Alderfer Auction Company, have been awarded the Certified Auctioneers Institute (CAI) designation, the highest designation offered in the auction industry.

The CAI designation is an executive education program designed for decision makers in auction firms and is earned and maintained by meeting the high standards set by the Auction Marketing Institute (AMI).

The CAI program is offered by AMI at Indiana University in Bloomington, Ind., and is a three-year intensive designation course. Auctioneers must qualify through experience and education to be admitted to the program. In order to successfully complete the program, auctioneers must complete the three courses, pass examinations, and prepare an acceptable auction summary report.

Maintaining the designation requires that one be a member in good standing of the Auction Marketing Institute, the National Auctioneers Association and complete at least 24 hours of continuing education every three years.

The institute program is designed to educate and train practicing auctioneers in ways to improve their auction business. Included are courses in finance, legal aspect of auctioneering, personal property, appraisals, real estate, personal business development, communications, and advertising.

Lon Clemmer and Charlie Moyer are sales representatives for the Sandford Alderfer Company and can be found auctioneering every Thursday at the Alderfer Auction Center in Hatfield.

Kuhn Introduces Gyrorake

VERNON, N.Y. — A new model Gyrorake, the GA 6000, has been added to the current Gyrorake line from Kuhn Farm Machinery, Inc., Vernon, New York USA, and Kuhn S.A., Saverne, France.

The new GA 6000 is a two-rotor, side-delivery Gyrorake with a hydraulically adjustable raking width from 9 feet 10 inches to 19 feet.

The rotary raking design leaves a superbly formed windrow. Windrows are fluffy and uniform with no roping for decreased drying times and more uniform smooth pickup. The rotary concept allows faster, gentler, cleaner operation with minimum leaf damage at all speeds. This Gyrorake will also operate as a windrow inverter.

Key features of the GA 6000:

• Working widths hydraulically adjustable from 9 feet 10 inches to 19 feet, with only a 40 hp tractor required.

• Adjustment of the height is hydraulic. The hydraulic lift raises the rake from the front and rear. This provides the necessary clearance to allow the rake to remain in operation when raised to pass over windrows without disturbing them.

• Side delivery allows windrows to be combined.

• A transport width of only 9 feet 2 inches.

• A conveniently adjustable swath curtain (one lever) makes swath width adjustment easy.

• Short 25-foot length allows easy maneuvering in small fields and the rake can be easily backed up.

The new GA 6000 is a two-rotor, side-delivery Gyrorake with a hydraulically adjustable raking width from 9 feet 10 inches to 19 feet.

• Large 18x8.50-8 "hyperballoon" tires for smooth and stable operation and transport.

• PTO shaft with torque limiter and CV joint. The torque limiter helps to protect the drivetrain from shock loads and the CV joint provides sharp chatter-free [illegible] and long life.

Kuhn's patented rotor with tangential tine arms and an enclosed gearcase. The tangential tine arm design provides the best pick-up and delivery of the crop. The enclosed gearcase protects the tine arm control components for long life and reliability.

Kuhn offers nine rake models with widths from 10 feet to 24 feet, both mounted and trailed.

FINDING FREE MONEY

The cow-calf business is a long-term investment that often has some poor returns. For example, calf prices last fall hardly covered variable expenses for maintaining a cow, and there certainly was little or nothing left for profit.

There are some ways to overcome some of these economic deficiencies. The way to do this is to look for "free money."

The following practices would qualify since they represent little or no additional cost, but have some positive returns.

Graze them longer. Any time a cow must be fed stored or purchased feed, there is a cost involved. This includes hay, since it is not a free feed. Hay costs money to grow, harvest, store, and feed. Any time less hay can be fed because a cow can harvest the feed herself through grazing, there is usually a lower cost of production.

Many of the pasture management programs we have adopted from New Zealand and elsewhere work very well to increase the grazing days available on a given farm. This includes the use of portable fences, the selection of a combination of forage varieties that will extend the amount and quality of standing forage available, and pasture rotation systems that suit the farm and the manager.

Use good bulls. There is no more important investment than the purchase of a bull. There is a wealth of performance information available on just about any breed of bull, and that information should be used to make an informed decision about a bull that will meet your needs. When shopping for the bull, ask the breeder for the bull's own performance record (birth weight, weaning weight, etc.) and then for the bull's EPDs. If the breeder cannot provide this information, then go down the road to someone who can. We have shown in field studies that the difference in value of bulls on the same farm can be as much as $5,000 over the life of the bull in a 30-cow herd. That $500 bull you bought may be the costliest thing you did!

Use crossbreeding. Heterosis or hybrid vigor results when breeds of cattle are crossed, and it is expressed in just about every performance trait except most carcass traits. For example, weaning weights can be increased by about 10 percent just by using an Angus bull on Hereford cows.

A word of caution, though. Just because a bull or cow is one breed or another does not mean the cross will be magic. Sound genetic selection should be used to determine the best bull to use in a crossbreeding system. In addition, the breeding program should be a concise plan. Using one breed this year and a different breed each of the next four years results in a mongrel herd that was better off not being crossbred the first time.

Castrate male calves at birth. The best time to castrate the male calf is at birth because first it is physically much easier on the calf than doing it at some later date, and secondly, it is easy to catch the calf and do some other things like eartag it. The preferred method is with a knife because it will result in 100 percent success, it is faster to accomplish, and because it is easier on a young calf than making them sick for a week when using a rubber band.

I once determined the value of castration by comparing the value of similar weaned steer and bull calves at a feeder calf sale. It works out that a knife castration at birth would have paid at the rate of $3,000 per hour for the labor to do it. I can work for those wages!

Use growth promoting implants. The return for using growth-promoting implants in beef calves starting at birth is about $8 for each $1 invested. That is a pretty good return on any investment. Some breeders who sell their calves as freezer beef will not use implants because their customers reject the idea. It you are one of these producers, just be sure your customers are paying you enough premium for not using them!

Feed the right feed at the right time. Underfeeding and overfeeding are both costly. Free money can be found by knowing what the cows need at that particular time and this need is being met with feed that will do the job at the best cost. The best examples are overfeeding protein to beef cows and underfeeding minerals. Work with a professional who can help direct a feeding program that will be cost-effective.

There is some free money lying around in the beef business, but we have to know where to look for it. These few practices will certainly find some of it.

Penn State Cooperates In Effort To Form Tree Fruit Regional Partnership

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Five land-grant universities and a federal agency have signed a unique agreement to form a regional partnership to better serve the tree fruit industry in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, and New Jersey.

"Stimulated by a need to cooperate across state lines, this group is six equal partners working together for the benefit of the industry," said Charles Krueger, associate dean for research in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "This is a coordinated effort that spans research, cooperative extension and student education."

The agreement is one of several initiatives outlined in a 1995 Mid-Atlantic Strategic Plan developed by members of the tree fruit industry and representatives from universities and agricultural agencies.

The participating organizations are Penn State, the University of Maryland, Cook College-Rutgers University, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, West Virginia University, and the Appalachian Fruit Research Station of the USDA Agricultural Research Service in Bardane, W. Va.

"Across the country, universities and Cooperative Extension services are experiencing cutbacks resulting in gaps in some areas of specialization," said Lynn P. Moore, president of Larriland Farm in Woodbine, Md. "The regional approach will allow the industry access to expertise that might not be available in this state."

An 18-member Mid-Atlantic Regional Tree Fruit Science and Education Working Group has been formed to coordinate the research and education programs of the participataing universities and develop recommendations on staffing and other issues. Each partner organization has three representatives on the working group.

The regional strategic plan and working group concept grew out of a series of meetings with tree fruit growers and processors from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia that started in 1993. Subsequently, the industry formed the Appalachian Tree Fruit Advisory Council in 19[illegible] with representatives from each state. New Jersey was added in 1996.

"These planning efforts will help identify industry needs," Krueger said. "For example, by coordinating hiring efforts, not every university must have a specialist in tree fruit post-harvest physiology. The input from tree fruit producers and processors will help us prioritize the research and education needs within the mid-Atlantic region."

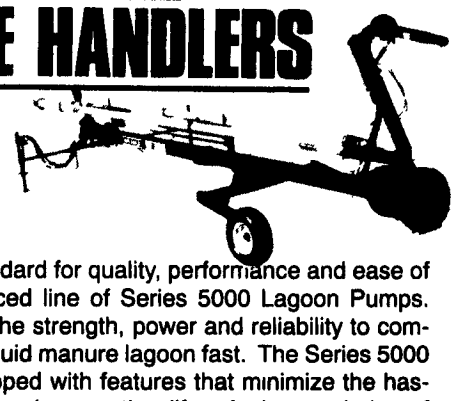
LAGOON PUMPS



Van Dale sets a new standard for quality, performance and ease of operation with its advanced line of Series 5000 Lagoon Pumps. Each model is built with the strength, power and reliability to completely agitate any size liquid manure lagoon fast. The Series 5000 Lagoon Pumps are equipped with features that minimize the hassle and maximize the pump's operating life. And your choice of three models lets you operate in everything from shallow straight wall pits to the deepest sloped wall lagoons.

SPREADER TANKS

Van Dale's new line of Spreader Tanks is designed to spread better, service easier and last longer than any other competitive spreaders.

*Warranty applies to original purchaser, provided the tank is used for non-commercial animal waste handling only See dealer for details

Van Dale's superior strength starts with 1/4" steel plate construction on tank shell, domed heads and baffles. Tank seams overlap and are fully welded for extra durability. Each unit is completely sand-blasted followed by a coat of rust-inhibiting primer. It's then finished with two coats of chemical resistant paint. The final result! A line of Spreader Tanks built to last.

In fact, we're so certain our tanks are built to last, we back them up with a comprehensive 10-year pro-rated tank body warranty* and a full 5-year undercarriage warranty.*

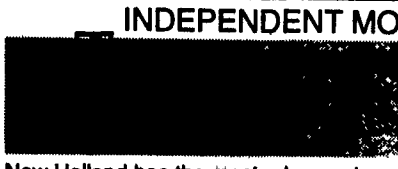
WE'RE COMMITTED TO SERVE YOU BETTER

INDEPENDENT MODULAR CUTTERBAR



...d secret to smooth, ...wing

New Holland has the most advanced modular cutterbar on the market. Here's why. Each disc module is an individually sealed gear case. And each gear case is connected by independent, hardened alloy drive shafts. No one else offers this unique design.
What does that mean for you?
Peace of Mind!
They're designed to handle the toughest conditions:
- Discs are austempered for extra hardness, toughness and durability, to withstand abrasive and punishing conditions. The smooth profile of the disc also prevents premature wear.
- Cutterbar module gears are precision-forged for added strength
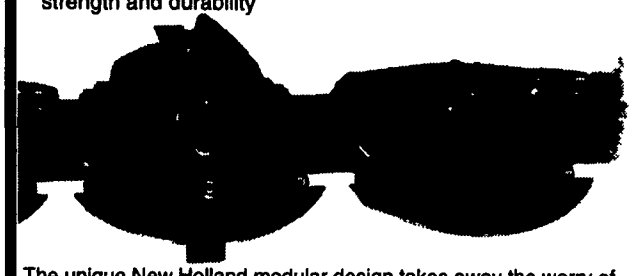
- Rock guards are made of heat treated ductile iron– not the typical stamped sheet metal – for maximum strength and durability

- Skid shoes are 1/4-inch thick, 8 inches wide and extend behind the module two inches for optimum flotation and protection in rocky conditions.



The unique New Holland modular design takes away the worry of major cutterbar damage.

Easy knife replacement
Knives have two cutting edges for twice the cutting life. You can flip or replace knives easily from the front of the cutterbar using only one bolt per knife. There's no need to raise the header or reach from the back of the cutterbar.

Reminder!!
We Still Offer EMERGENCY AFTER HOURS PARTS SERVICE CALL:

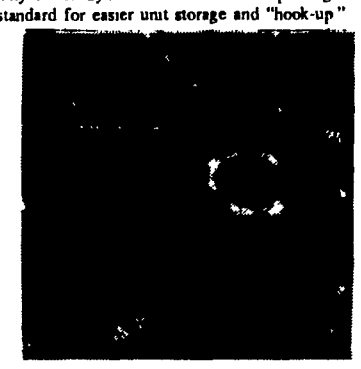
MOWER In Stock

The new Rhino RDM Series Disc Mower is designed for faster, efficient mowing of grass pastures and hay meadows and offers features not found on many competitive units.

The innovative design of the cutterbar allows easier access to the disc spindle shaft and gear compared to some competitive units The gears run in an enclosed oil bath for constant lubrication The blades are reversible and easily replaceable for lower maintenance costs and minimal downtime

The cutterbar can be easily raised to the transport position hydraulically from the tractor seat A parking stand is standard for easier unit storage and "hook-up"



Rhino disc mowers feature an easy access cutterbar The innovative design of the cutterbar allows access to the disc spindle shaft and gear module without disassembly of the entire cutterbar, reducing maintenance costs and downtime The hardened rock guards are designed to help protect the entire leading edge of the cutterbar from damage and, along with the skid shoes, are easily replaceable. A heavy-duty CAT III & Cat II offset three-point hitch made of 4"x6" thick-wall tubing, is standard to provide dependable service. A safety breakaway system is built in to provide mainframe protection against sudden impacts when mowing. With 5" of blade overlap and blade tip speed of 15,814 RPM, Rhino disc mowers provide a clean, smooth cut. AXIAL-FLOW COMBINE

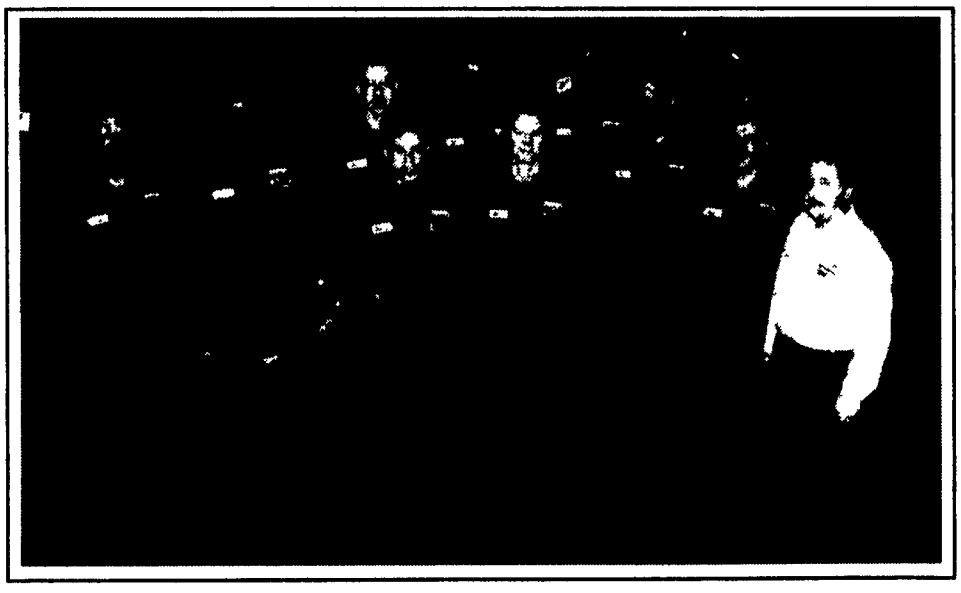
to Case IH AXIAL FLOW Combines

The Axial Flow concept was new in 1977. After twenty years the single rotor design that eliminated straw walkers and increased the threshing and separating area through the use of centrifugal force is still the same. But the technological advances in the 2100 Series make their cousins of 1978 and 1979 seem like antiques.

PRODUCTIVITY, PERFORMANCE, and PREMIUM GRAIN were the hallmarks of the axial flow combine in 1977 and they still are today - - more so because of the steady productivity and performance improvements, made over the past 20 years.



Hoober People are proud of their association with the Case IH Axial Flow combine since the beginning. Our customers know that our commitment to the Axial flow is based upon our ability to make the Axial Flow combine out perform the competition in all crop conditions.

MAKE YOUR NEXT COMBINE AN AXIAL FLOW COMBINE FROM HOOBERS.

FOUR IMPELLER BLADES ADJUST for close tolerance and efficient blowing.

FULLY AUTOMATED UNLOADING because the 98C is self propelled on the silage surface without cable support. No winch watching!
DEPTH-OF-CUT CONTROL ensures high-volume delivery.
AUTOMATIC SELF-LEVELLING for uniform silage removal, saving trips up the silo.
ALL PARTS GO UP THE CHUTE to install easily anytime.

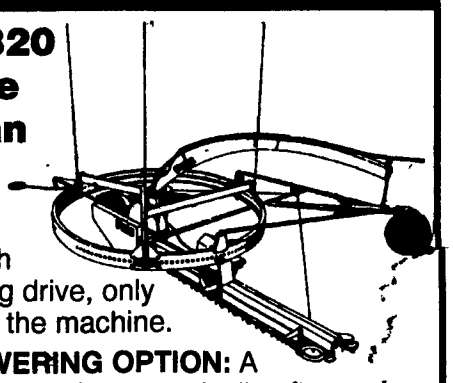
Owners of Patz 61, 66, 98, 98A and 98B unloaders: This bigger blower will fit your unloader.

Model RD-820 Ring Drive Without an Extra Motor



RING-DRIVE: With the roller-chain ring drive, only one motor powers the machine.
AUTOMATIC LOWERING OPTION: A winch lowers the RD-820 automatically after each complete revolution.
GATHERING CHAIN: The Patz cutters and claws cut loose frozen and hard-packed silage efficiently, and then move it to the blower faster.
POWER CUTTER: Spring tension keeps high-speed, self-sharpening blades tight to the silo wall to shave it clean.
TORQUE LIMITER: Ratchet-pin design protects the ring and drive system while working through tough conditions.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21st CENTURY?"

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency; this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

ADVANTAGE ... CONCRETE

"IF YOU NEED A SILO... YOU NEED TO CALL BOB FRANCIS..."

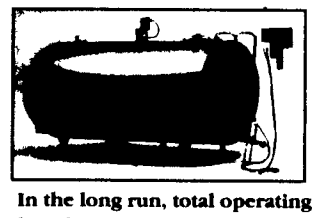
Scroll-Compressor Technology

New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment costs are not the only cost of cooling milk

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ 08 kW for 12,000 Lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48,550	$50,850
Savings	$2,300
